Dear Porter:

This is Wednesday morning. We had another rain yesterday and everything is wet and damp this morning- but the sun is shining and I guess it will soon dry off.

Mama has been writing me how nicely you did in your speeches all of which pleases me very much. I am very sorry that I could not be there to hear you.

Porter, I expect I will be home Saturday or Sunday some time when I will see you and we can have a long talk. I hope you and mama are well. Excuse this short letter. I hope I will hear from you again before I go home.

Your affectionate,

Papa

[[written in margins]] Charles is getting along very well- but will take him several weeks to get well enough to use.
