It has been said that the Junior year in nurse's training is by far the most hectic year of all. It involves moving to other cities, switching to entirely different areas of nursing, meeting students from other schools, and adjusting to any and all situations.

The Junior class was divided into three groups beginning in September of 1966. These blocks rotated through the three areas of psychiatry, obstetrics, and medical-surgical nursing before joining together again in June to travel to Denver for their training in Pediatrics. With the exception of surgery, each rotation lasted three months and involved the basic nursing care and some specialties in each particular area.

The groups traveled to Ingleside, Nebraska for their psychiatric training. They not only studied about the psychotic disorders, but they also studied about the growth and development of personalities and interrelated the two. The girls were able to work quite closely with both men and women patients on the various wards, observing them and their behavior.

The blocks returned to Lincoln for obstetrics and medical-surgical nursing. In obstetrics they were able to spend time in the nursery and both ante and post partum. Each student had a selective experience of caring for a mother and her infant, using it as both a teaching and a learning experience. In medical-surgical nursing, the girls spent three weeks working in the operating room and a week in the recovery room. They learned the principles of sterile technique in surgery, and they also learned to work closely and efficiently with the doctors during surgery. They spent a month on the floors, correlating their knowledge of pre-operative and post-operative care with their knowledge of the pathology, the anesthesia, and the actual surgery.

When the entire class studied pediatrics, they went to Children's Hospital in Denver, Colorado. This training involved the care and treatment of children from infancy to adolescence.

The highlight of the Junior year was their month's vacation during November, December, or May, depending on which block the girls were in. Some girls worked during this time; others were lucky enough to travel. The remainder just took life easy for a change. Regardless of what any of them did, they enjoyed every minute of it.

The class of 1969 started classes at the University on September 12. Transportation was our first problem. We left in the dark and returned in the dark by our four choices of transportation: cab, bus, foot, or a friend's car. The first semester was spent in classes of anatomy, sociology, chemistry, and English on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. The second semester we had a better schedule so we had less idle time at the campus. We had classes in anatomy, microbiology, and educational psychology on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. On Tuesday and Thursday we attended pharmacology. We can all remember the "hours" spent studying in the library and the lounges, the time spent talking with friends in "The Crib" and even better the time spent sleeping in the lounges. Two things we would all generally like to forget are those "finals" and "labs". We will all miss parts of the University but we are all glad to see the beginning of a new phase of our nursing education begin.

Lincoln General School of Nursing held open House on Saturday, April 25. The purpose of the annual event is to show our educational facilities to prospective students and their parents and to interest them in our school. Registration was held at 1:30. Mrs. Sullivan then presented a talk on new trends in nursing, and facts concerning Lincoln General School of Nursing. Following Mrs. Sullivan's talk the prospective students and their parents were divided in groups which were led by student nurse from the freshman, junior, and senior classes. The student nurses expressed their views on our school and answered any questions the members of the group had. Following the group sessions the group as a whole toured the new hospital under the direction of Mr. Donald Tracey, the assistant administrator of the hospital. Following the tour the prospective students and parents were entertained at a tea in the recreation room in the dorm. The afternoon was closed with tours of the living area and facilities of the students in the dorm. The afternoon was termed as a success with hopes of gaining more students for our school of nursing.

Senior Recognition Banquet

On April 14, 1967, the Junior Class sponsored the traditional Senior Recognition Banquet. The Seniors were the guests of honor at the buffet supper held at the Colonial Inn on Cornhusker Highway. They received white gardenia corsages, their class flower, at the door. Special guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. Glen Atkinson. She became the new Director of Nursing Education on May 1. Other members of the faculty and classmates also attended the banquet. Entertainment for the evening was furnished by the New Day Singers. Headed by Mike Larsen, the five-piece group from Wesleyan sang a variety of folk songs. The students and faculty sang the school song when the evening ended. The tables were decorated in royal blue and white, the Senior colors.

Ice Cream Social

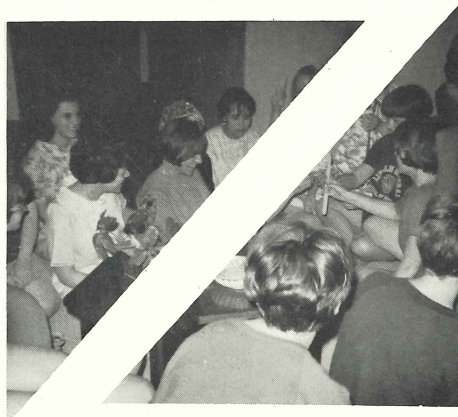

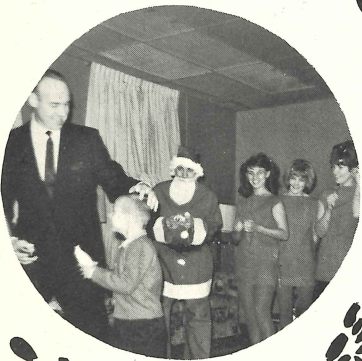

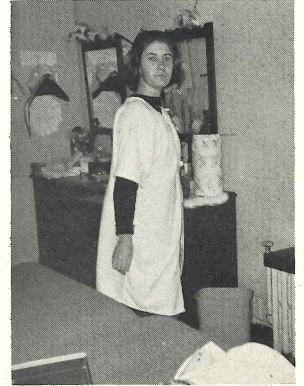

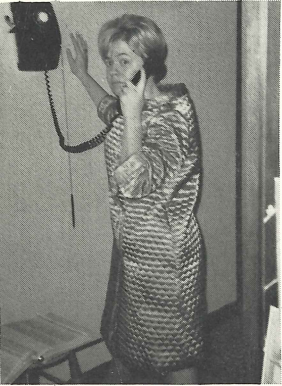

June 25, 1967, was a big day for everyone at Lincoln General Hospital. On that day the new hospital was dedicated. The student association celebrated by having an "old fashioned ice cream social" in the backyard of the nurse's residence. The backyard was turned into a General Store which served pie, cake, brownies, lemonade and of course ice cream. Other decorations consisted of cracker and pickle barrels, straw bales and a livery stable. The girls kept in time by adorning in all types of centennial costumes. We were entertained throughout the afternoon by organ music and the freshmen sextette. The day ended in a great success as no one fell into our feared snake swamp. It was estimated that we served 600 people.

Graduation

GRADUATION EXERCISES FOR THE CLASS OF 1967 WERE HELD ON AUGUST 17 AT SAINT PAULS METHODIST CHURCH WITH A RECEPTION FOLLOWING AT THE CORNHUSKER HOTEL.
