

*As a symbol to the Spirit of Nursing,
As a record of lasting friendship,
And hours of joy and toil,
And as a service to our Hospital,
Whose future shall uphold the tradition of its past,
If these things are embodied in the pages of this book,
then
Our purpose has been accomplished.*

The Modern Baby

The hand that rocks the cradle, but there is no such hand,
 It is bad to rock the baby, they would have us understand:
 So the cradle's but a relic of the former foolish days,
 When mothers reared their children in unscientific ways;
 When they jounced them and bounced them, those dwarfs of long ago,
 The Wegner's and the Colburn's and the Hancock's, don't you know?

They warn us that the baby will possess a muddled brain,
 If we doddle him, or rock him. We must carefully refrain.
 He must lie in one position, never swayed and never swung,
 Or his chance to grow to greatness will be blasted while he's young.
 Oh! To think how they were ruined by their mothers long ago.
 The Munger's, and the Thomson's and the Andrew's, don't you know?

Then we must feed the baby by the schedule that is made,
 And the food that is given must be measured out and weighed.
 He must cry to inform us that he isn't satisfied.
 But he couldn't grow to greatness if his wants were supplied.
 Think how foolish mothers stunted those poor weaklings long ago,
 The Hickman's, and the Zemer's and the Covey's, don't you know?

We are given a great mission. We are here today on earth,
 To bring forth a race of giants, and to guard them from their birth,
 To insist upon the freedom from the rocking that was bad,
 For our parents and their parents, scrambling all the brains they had
 Oh! if they'd been fed by schedule, would they have been stunted so.
 The Orr's, and the Teal's and the Emerson's, dont you know.
