

Why A Library?

A man may have a dream, and
Put it down on paper, and Plan a lot. But until that
Lot is of the land and a
House built, that dream is
Nothing more than wishful
Thinking.

A man may have a dream of
Wondrous worlds to conquer,
Of how to climb mountains
And sail the seas. But if
His dream is not girded by
Knowledge, he may try and fail.
Then his dream will fade away.

A book may be that bridge
Between dream and reality.
A book may really help
To sail the seas. A book
May be the dream of what
He wants to see, or help
Understanding other lands.

A Library may have that book
Which inspires man to greatness,
As he dreams of what is past.
What lives is in his mind
And hands.

Virginia T. Mosley
Borough Historian
Tenafly, N.J.
December 2000