The passing of the bond election marked the end of the 1996-97 school year. Now the following year starts off with dreams of a bigger and better campus. With or without the new additions, Nederland students are able to yern for the conquest and execute in triumph.

NEDERLAND HIGH SITE PLAN

Team captains and varsity football team cheer on Cory McMains', senior team captain, speech at the Homecoming pep rally against Bridge City Cardinals. The football team supports each other in moments of glory and in chaos. Making it to Playoffs was a wonderful accomplishment to finish the 1997-1998 football season.

Varsity volleyball members get together to plan their strategy. This year the team learned important life lessons that will help them reach their dreams.

Nederland children watch the pep rally in awe and wonder. They dream of growing up to become the future cheerleaders, Westernairs, Goldenettes, and Golden Silks. This is the time in their lives when they dream about the most and decide to go after it.

Determination, motivation, vision, organization, practice, sweat, time, effort, responsibility, intelligence, drive, and love is the stuff that dreams are made of. In every Bulldog you can find all these qualities because we all have dreams. They may range from going to state Academic Decathlon competition to personal dreams such as attending Baylor University. "My whole family graduated from Baylor. For the last twelve years, we have been going to homecoming at Baylor. Now I realize it's a good school." said Maggie Morgan, senior.

At the beginning of the 1997-1998 school year, you could find Coach Larry Neuman dreaming of playoffs, Nederland administrators envisioning a new and improved high school campus, team captains dreaming of district championships, and academic clubs striving to win first place in competitions. "Our goal is always to make it to a high level of competition like state. We have worked really hard to prepare ourselves for state. For the whole month of January we have meetings everyday, we meet during Christmas break, and work hard through it all. January 29-30 is when we will see if the work really paid off." said Len Weeks, senior.

Personal dreams play in the minds of many seniors at Nederland. Christy Cauthen, senior, explains her personal dreams. "I want to be either a model or an optometrist. I have really bad eyesight; in fact I'm really close to being legally blind.

“ I feel that getting the faculty involved increases school morality. It gives everyone a chance to become involved.

said Thu Duong, senior. ”

My dream of becoming an optometrist would help me because I want to help others in third world countries." Senior Adam Gengo's dream is to become a millionaire stockbroker and own a cattle ranch.

This year is a special year not only because of the feats that Nederland students have accomplished, but because it is Nederland's 100th year of birth. Citizens of Nederland also plan a blowout party for the city's centennial celebration. Plans include the Dutch ambassador as a keynote speaker, a Country and Western spaghetti dinner, Miss Centennial contest, calliope from Holland, a flower market, an old fashioned concert, a picnic, and a parade to top it off.

Freshmen football players yell at hearts content to support the varsity Bulldogs. All freshmen hunger for the honor of becoming a varsity football player. Their first step includes finishing the football season with a 9-1 record.

Jodie Collins, Jennifer Hsing, and Marjan Rahmani, seniors, crave for the best years of their high school lives. "My senior year is a lot more fun than I thought it would be. I'm glad because it's my last year to have fun and relax before my college years."

*Roxanne Hamutb,

year Anais Nin once said "Each friend represents a world in us, a world possibly not born until they arrive, and it is only by this meeting that a new

Varsity football players walk through the banner ready to take on the world. They finished the season with an exceptional 9-1 season, going to playoffs, and winning by-district.

Students Face Changes For The Better

This year started off with many changes in progress but this didn't hold the student body back from completing the most.

*M*ichelle Tran, senior, quickly locks her car door and runs to the building to catch Mrs. Morman's Calculus class. Tran and many other students are often tardy due to traffic generated by the Spurlock Road reconstruction. Brian Harris, senior, comments on his experience. "It made me late every morning. I even had to wake up fifteen minutes earlier. But in the end, it's worth it because I enjoy the extra room [on Spurlock]."

Meanwhile, construction of the foreign language building, as well as several other buildings, is in progress. The new foreign language department is scheduled to be completed by November. Until then the foreign language students take shelter in other classrooms such as the science labs and English group room. Jodie Collins, senior, said, "I felt really out of place, and it wasn't a very comfortable learning environment." The constant sound of drilling and the sight of construction trucks and plywood have become common for the Nederland students.

Despite the commotions and impediments, the students' focal point is on their vision to live up to and exceed expectations. The varsity football team, as well as the band, Westernaires, cheerleaders, and volleyball team, engage in grinding practices to prepare for the impending events that will represent the excellence of the 'Dogs. At about the same time that Spurlock became a four-lane road, their hard work came into effect. Although the varsity football team was defeated last year in the first-round playoff game, 1997 was their year to dwell in greatness. "Making it to the playoffs is something I've always wanted. It was special to me because the 'Dogs won bi-district. It was a personal goal of mine that I wanted to achieve. Now my senior year means more since I have achieved this," said Jereme Havard.

The team played an impressive playoff game against the Dayton Broncos, 31-0, which advanced them to a second-round game against the Jacksonville Indians. But the Bulldog name was not only held up by the varsity team but also by the freshman team with a record of 9-1 and the undefeated junior-varsity team. "People didn't think we were a good team. But we worked an practice hard every day, and we showed them what we were mad of. We're the undefeated district champions," said Conrad Lim, junior.

At the same time, the tennis team did not falter to earn their District Championship title for the ninth consecutive year and progress to regionals. The glory for the band came when they defended their "Best In Class" title at Southwest Universtiy in San Marcos. Yet they all strive for the same purpose - to continue the tradition and to bear the honor of the Bulldogs. Their desire and hunger simply characterize the stuff that dreams are made of. -By Ivy Arce

WITH THE TEAM'S FORCE AND THE FANS DRIVE, NEDERLAND RUPTURES BRIDGE CITY, 57-18.

Junior, Lakisha Ceasar shakes her hips and claps her hands to the fast beat the drum line is tapping out. The homecoming pep rally had the most student participation since the first rally.

"I don't like pep rallies, and I usually don't stand up, but this time I did," said April Keating, junior.

Not only did the drum line and the song, "Men In Black" get the crowd screaming but also Cory McMains, senior, was one of the weekly football captains.

"When I found out I would be captain I wanted to do something other than 'Hey ya'll come out to the game; word up!' not that it is wrong, but it was kind of boring. So I decided to liven things up a little. People seemed to like it. I just wanted to make it memorable," said McMains.

But the excitement of the pep rally crowd was not surprising considering the support the community began to show early in the week at the annual bonfire.

"The crowd was so big that when the fire got really hot, we all moved back like a big wave." said Melody Pinell, junior.

Hard work and determination were the key in the Bulldog victory over PN-G.

DESTROY Indians

When students arrived at school that warm Friday morning, they knew it was not a normal day. The halls looked more like a war zone, and everyone knew why. The 74th meeting between Port Neches-Groves and the Bulldogs was a very important event. Not only were bragging rights at stake, but PN-G needed to win to stay alive in the playoff race. The Bulldogs could clinch a playoff spot if they left the Reservation with a victory.

The anticipation mounted through out the day, and when Mr. Mallory called for everyone to be released for the pep rally, it seemed like a battalion being prepped for battle. Mr. Fleming gave the team a rousing pep talk, and other groups also got the team fired up. No one left after the bell rang for school to be out, and after the school song, the deafening yells of the whole student body accompanied the team out of the gym. It was time to head to Indian territory.

In front of a more than capacity crowd of 13,000 people, the Dogs received the opening kickoff, and the game was underway. Troy Sumrall scored the only points of the whole first half when he ran one yard for a touchdown midway through the first quarter. The team lost the ball on the Indians' one yard line in the final seconds of the half which sent the Bulldogs to the locker room hanging their heads, and the Indians left with excited, smiling faces.

The Indians had the ball to start the second half, and scored the only touchdown of the quarter to tie the game at 7. The Dogs came out in the fourth quarter with an Aaron Barton interception which led to a nine yard run by Sumrall to go ahead 14-7. Three plays later, Barton picked up a fumble by PN-G quarterback Dustin Long and ran twenty yards for the touchdown. Then, Sumrall scored again with 2:43 left to put the game out of reach for the Indians.

After the 28-7 win, bragging rights belonged to the Bulldogs, and barring a miracle, the Indians could not make the playoffs. The miracle never happened. The Indians stayed home and watched as their cross-town rivals competed well in the playoffs. Story By Lori Cain

The 97-98 NHS cheerleaders started their year at Southwest University cheerleading camp. Preparing themselves for the upcoming year, they practiced and competed in various competitions there. The varsity cheerleaders won the dance and sideline divisions. The JV squad also won their dance division while the freshmen won superior squad. Out of 450 cheerleaders, Kristen Borel and Whitney Moore were chosen as UCA applicants. Kristen Borel, Whitney Moore, Lindsey Mitchell, Jamie Mitchell, Kacy Schion, and Lindsey Sessions made the UCA All-Star Team for the varsity category. "Since this is my last year as a NHS cheerleader, I was glad that we made it to the playoffs, and I loved cheering for Nederland," said Kacy Schion, senior. For the JV UCA All-Star Team, Meghan Mann and Julie Moya were chosen while Meghan Davis and Brixie Blankenship were chosen for the freshman team. "The cheerleaders need each other to support one another," said Summer Smith, sophomore. "This is my first year on the squad; I met new people and had a lot of fun," said Nancy Martin, freshmen.

ELECT

At the last home football game of the season, the senior football players traditionally select one senior girl who has supported them throughout the season to be the Football Sweetheart. This year that girl is Alicica Judice.

Alicia has many attributes that qualify her to be the football sweetheart. She has shown extreme spirit and loyalty to the Bulldogs throughout junior high and high school. Alicia has also been involved in many extracurricular activities including varsity cheerleading. She has shown her Bulldog spirit not only through cheerleading but also by being part of the Homecoming court her freshman and sophomore years. Alicia has proven her leadership skills by being a member of Student Council. But her excellence does not stop there. Crowns

Following tradition, the Band Queen from last year picked a new one this year. The qualifications for becoming Queen is to be very dedicated to our school and show an extreme amount of spirit. Last year's Band Queen, Ginger Cooper, selected Kara Hammonds, junior, to fulfill the title. Kara plays the clarinet in the band and is also a Varsity member of the soccer team. She is very supportive of the Bulldogs and shows it in her extracurricular activities.

For the first time in school history, the band selected a Band King. Phillip James, junior, was awarded this honor. Not only is he active in the band but also in Ned & Co.

I Texas winter is traditionally one of the mildest in the country. Thanks to El Nino, the 1997-98 winter was just as mild. Fortunately, southeast Texas was spared from the dangerous weather that slammed the country from coast to coast. El Nino has affected almost every aspect of the world in some way. "The thought of going to vacation in Acapulco and losing your life, or nearly losing your life is horrible. Even the mud slides in California are disastrous. I didn't know any of the people that died personally, but just knowing that so many lives were lost because of El Nino weather is atrocious," said Jacquelin Marmolejo, junior. These winters make it possible for certain sports teams to practice outside year round without the hassle of cold, snowy days. If one were to live in, say, Michigan, he would laugh at the thought of practicing for track, or soccer, or any other outdoor sport during the winter. For this, Texas winters are very unique and so are the activities that go on during them.

Here at Nederland High School, uniqueness and tradition shine as sure as the cows moo. From the annual Christmas parade to the Valentine's Twirp dance, winter is a time of high activity. Tennis repeats history by winning district for the ninth year in a row, while the swim team establishes itself third in the district. One of the biggest events of winter is Fun Day, an annual event that raises funds for Project Celebration. There are several activities one can enjoy at Fun Day, such as the talent show, miniature golf, Mr. & Mrs. Legs contest, and the dance. As one can see, winter is far from boring for Nederland students.

Basketball and soccer are two of the more popular sports that go on at this time. Other winter sports include swimming, golf, and powerlifting. The Nederland High School swim team finished another prosperous year with third place in district. Jenny White, a new student from Iowa, has earned her place on the swim team. "I've been swimming for so long that it is a way of life for me. My dream is to make Junior Nationals and to swim in a Division I in college," said White, junior.

Along with sports, there are many different clubs that are still active throughout the year. Some of these clubs include Student Council, Ned & Co., Business Professionals of America, and Key Club. This year, Key Club has raised money for Justin O'Neil, a local youth with a rare form of brain cancer. Justin's family could not afford to pay for his chemotherapy, and the money that Key Club raised went directly to his medical expenses. Key Club members collected money on busy intersections such as Highway 365 and 27th Street. This act of sincere generosity is one that should be remembered here at Nederland High School, to show that people really do care enough to give something so small to something so great.

Winter brings seniors closer to living out dreams of graduation and personal goals such as rank or personal improvement. For some, February was filled with anticipation as seniors and juniors found out their ranks. "I was very pleased when I found out my rank. I feel that I accomplished my goals, but I was mad that I wasn't number three. So far, my rank has made me work harder to stay eighth or advance," said Patrick Smith, junior. Winter is a time of jubilation and fun, and to miss out on some of these unique activities is to miss out on what could be the greatest times of your life.

*Activities ranged from putting a person in jail to getting all twisted up in the game of Twister.

*Fun Day was sponsored by teachers and parents of seniors.

*There was an all day volleyball tournament which was won by a team of juniors.

*"I had a good time," said Amber Beniot, freshman, "The games were lots of fun.

*"Despite a slightly smaller-than-average turn-out, profits were good mainly because of donations for concessions, volleyball participation, and the turn out for the dance," said Steven Beagele, assistant principal.

Things Students Do

Class Projects, what a blast

Students need something to do, other than the usual note taking and homework. For this reason, the teacher will assign a project to be done. Some are group projects, and some are individual. In either case, the teacher tries to make the lab as fun as possible. For example, Mrs. Van Marion's "Speed Demon" and catapult lab, and Mrs. Noel's Canterbury Tales projects. All of these are designed to help the students learn more about their subject.

During the month of September, physics teacher Mrs. Van Marion assigned students a lab known as the "Speed Demon" lab. The lab was to teach students to calculate velocity and determine whether an object was going at regular velocity or at constant velocity. The students had to make a race track using meter sticks and raced cars down. Using their knowledge of physics, the students had to figure out which car went which velocity.

"For one thing," Mrs. Van Marion said, "it taught them how to use a stop watch." Mrs. Van Marion thinks this is one of the most amusing labs she teaches, and feels the students think so to.

Another student project that was done this year took place in Mrs. Noel's senior English class. Students in the class had to get in small groups, and act out a skit in the front of the class. The purpose of this project was to enhance their knowledge of the Canterbury Tales. The projects were done in October, and were only assigned to those students in 4th year English. -by Mike Tobias Preparing to start his "Speed Demon" lab for Mrs. Van Marion's physics class, senior Jason Jones makes sure everything is in place. Some labs can be confusing at times, while others are easy as 1, 2, 3. Most of the time, people get by with the help of their friends.

During Mrs. Van Marion's "Speed Demon" lab, senior Ryan Hudson faces his car. Perhaps he is collecting the data he needs to finish his lab. Physics labs are sometimes a breeze, but the equipment can be stubborn at some times. Most of the materials for the labs are given to the students by the instructor.

Talking in a room by yourself is one thing, but add a few of your friends, and many others, and it's a whole different world. Here senior Kurt Guntner is giving a presentation on the Canterbury Tales, and he doesn't seem bothered by his audience. Giving a speech is not the easiest thing in the world, but everybody had to give one sometime, or another. It is best to learn how at an early age, so one will get used to it later on.

Waiting for her group to get ready, senior Stacey Walker prepares to start a lab experiment for physics class. Working together with people as a team is one of the aspects of doing a physics lab. Everyone has to pay attention and stay on task, or data could come out differently.

The Canterbury Tales was written sometime during the Renaissance period in Europe. This year, students in the Senior English class recieved a chance to learn more about the stories in the Canterbury Tales, and had to perform a short skit about the stories about one of them. Angela Way is wearing a mask for her part in a presentation for her English class. These presentation were given performed in October 1997.

During the "Speed Demon" lab experiment, seniors Craig Barron, Erin Hayes and Shannon Rozell await the data needed in order to complete their assignment. Most of the time, students finish their labs with care and pride in what they do. Erin and Shannon look attentive, but the look on Craig's face can just about tell you how much fun he is having.

Presenting to his English class, senior Robert Segovia gave a breath taking performance. Many people feel uncomfortable speaking in front of a group of people. It is especially hard when your friends are sitting in the audience. A good trick to relieve the tension: picture everyone in the audience naked (just don't get to excited!).

Collecting data for his "Speed Demon" lab for Physics class, senior Britt Valenta diligently watches his bunny car make it's way down the race track. Physics labs vary from many different experiments, and are given to students whenever a teacher feels they need one. This lab took place in September 1997.

Bulldogs Build Future

The 1997-1998 school year built itself from the ground up at Nederland High School.

Over the past hundred years, the city of Nederland has grown. Nederland's high school and the surrounding areas have grown as well—in population and in physical size. Since the passage of the school bond issue in March 1997, Nederland schools, especially the high school, have undergone construction and repairs of varying degrees. The construction at Nederland High School spans from the new tennis courts behind the vocational building to the recently-widened Spurlock Road. In between the two, there is a new foreign language building. Even though construction of this building began in May of 1997, teachers and students who planned to move into the building before school started in August met a little problem—the structure was not finished. In fact, because of delays, seven teachers and their classes were not allowed to move into the building until October. But the foreign language building is not the only new structure at NHS. After the completion of the building, an awning was built which connects the main building, science wing, foreign language building, and gyms.

The construction is not over yet, though. An auditorium, the first-ever at Nederland High School, is to be built between the vocational and main buildings, in the place of the old tennis courts. The auditorium will not only be the largest-scale construction project here at NHS but also one with great benefits, especially for performing groups. The band and choirs will now have a suitable place with better acoustics to perform for fellow students. So, too, will the drama department which is now forced to give performances of their productions in the small practice area adjacent to the cafeteria. Another construction site which affects Bulldogs young and old is Bulldog Stadium where a new rubberized track is being put in. Although the construction at the stadium, around the high school, and on Spurlock Road caused problems and interferences during the 97-98 school year, the results will be enjoyed by Bulldogs for years to come. by Emily Perryman

The athletic department took a bite out of the bond as well. Money was allotted to improve the "doghouse;" not only was it given a fresh coat of black and gold paint but a new addition was added as well as a new weight room. photo by Renne Hamm

Overcome Obstacles

Having no place to practice did not stop the Westernaires from excelling at competitions.

During the summer the Westernaires could not practice at Nederland High School because of all of the construction. Luckily they found a community church that would let them practice there. Westernaires attended camp at SMU in July. Practicing at a church instead of the high school did not stop them from winning the Gussie Nell Davis Team of the Day and Week, Sweepstake Award, Home Routine Award, and Most Admired Team of the Day Award. Fourteen girls made All-American Honorable Mention.

Westernaires attended competitions in Houston, New Orleans, Galveston, and California.

The Westernaires held many fundraisers this year. They had pre-game dinners before all the home football games, a car wash to help with expenses for camp, a gumbo dinner, and a scholarship dinner.

- * There were twelve new nurse aides certified this year in HOSA.
- * The class motto for HOSA is "Just thump it."
- * Peer tutors go to every elementary and middle school in Nederland to help the kids.
- * "Peer tutoring is fun because I get to be around the kids," said Sarah Dombrosky, senior.

The students work hard and have fun and feel good about helping others.

Sarah Dombrosky, Amanda Daigle, Michelle Crain, Devin Payne, Sylvia Gutierrez, Andrea Venable, Melissa Rodriguez, Jessica Marfaist, Quy Dao, and Darrel have all been certified this year as nurse aides.

Jenny Pomeroy, senior, helps students at Central Middle School. In peer tutoring she works with kids who need extra help in certain subjects.

In HOSA the students learn how a hospital operates. Quy Dao and Lisa Nguyen demonstrate how to make a bed with hospital corners.

Sylvia Gutierrez and Andrea Venable, seniors, demonstrate how to take vital signs. Sylvia is taking Andrea's blood pressure.

Another vital sign the HOSA students learn to check for is the pulse. Sylvia Gutierrez is getting worried because she is having trouble finding Quy Dao's pulse.

Sometimes it takes two people to make a bed correctly as shown by Michelle Crain and Sarah Dombrosky, seniors.

Chantae Self, junior, helps out with the HOSA blood drive. As a junior she will be able to participate in HOSA next year.

Michelle Crain and Sarah Dombrosky illustrate the importance of keeping all parts of not only the hospital but also the classroom clean by making the bed .

"The first part of the year everyone worked really hard, but then after Christmas people started slacking off. It made it harder to produce the paper," said junior editor, Lori Cain.

Michael Powell, senior, works on the computer, typing up his story for the prom edition of the Beat.

Watching playback of the unfinished show, senior Robert Segovia, among fellow US2U staff members sees how the editors have progressed. This was Segovia's last year on US2U, and he did extremely well as news anchor. He will attend Texas A & M next fall.

Stopping for a quick break, US2U reporter Jamie Mitchell prepares to cover a story for a future show. Mitchell's job is not only to report the news, but also to find news as it happens. A senior, this too, is Jamie's last year on the US2U staff.

Thinking of what to write, Kevin Bradley and Dustin Lesner, both sophomores, work hard to finish scripts for an upcoming show. Good scripts are essential for any news show to succeed. News anchors count on the scripts to be truthful and newsworthy each and every time.

Editing his segments for the show is a time when Matt Orlando's love for sports really comes out. Here, Orlando is putting the finishing touches on some soccer clips for an upcoming show. At Sam Houston State University, Orlando's Sports Spectacular took home two first place awards for Outstanding Production and Performance.

US2U continued its award winning tradition this past year, traveling to Sam Houston State University where the show won three first place awards. Matt Orlando's Sports Spectacular won first place for Outstanding Performance and Production, while he himself won for Best Performance. Orlando spent the summer working at Channel 4 News and learned different ways to edit and tape news segments.

"Matt did a spectacular job on our sports segments this year," said US2U advisor Mrs. Regina Cowles. "We hope to improve even more next year and include more coverage of girls sports as well."

US2U News also won awards for Outstanding News Production.

Listening to a story suggestion, seniors Manuel Bento and Crystal Paasch ponder vigorously as to whether the story is worthy enough to be aired. Suggestions are vital to the production of a show. One person's idea could end up as next week's main story.

Jeremy Bachelor, US2U's producer, is in charge of the show's staff and what they do. It is his job to make sure everyone else on the staff does theirs. A sophomore, Jeremy still has two years left to extend the mark he's already made as one of US2U's best producers to date.

Close to the show's air date, Jennifer Dye, junior, and Kandi Gussman, senior, converse amongst themselves, nervous about how everything will turn out. It is natural to have anxieties in these types of situations--the entire school sees when you mess up.

EXPERIENCE LIFE

Vocational classes, such as Auto Tech, Floral Design, and HOSA, are designed to help students learn about life. These classes provide information that let the student see what the real world is like.

In Auto Tech, students learn how to fix cars. This is helpful for students who wish to go into engineering or auto repairs.

Future nurses experience the hospital life in HOSA. To join HOSA you must take another class, and then apply to be in HOSA.

In floral design classes, students put floral arrangements together. This class is good for people who are creative and like to make things. "We use our creativity to create designs including dried flowers, real flowers, candle making, and special holiday projects," said Jessica Darder, senior.

Many changes hit the Lady Dogs this season. With new and young faces joining, the Lady Dogs worked through it and are looking forward to next season.

SOCCER PEP RALLY

It seems as though we went to hundreds of football pep rallies, but this year we had a different kind of pep rally.

ENDING THE SEASON WITH A 18-4-2 RECORD, THE BOYS' SOCCER TEAM WENT THROUGH MULTIPLE TOURNAMENTS TO FINALLY END THEIR SEASON AT THE REGIONAL SEMI FINALS. BUT BEFORE THEY LEFT FOR THAT FINAL GAME, THE SCHOOL FINALLY RECOGNIZED JUST HOW GOOD THE SOCCER BOYS WERE AND GAVE THEM A PEP RALLY

When the student body finally filled the gym, they were amazed to see that this pep rally was for the soccer team.

As the soccer team walks to the stage, they are cheered by the entire school.

Soccer stands with pride as they are honored for their great season.

As the soccer team sits on their thrones for the day, they listen to everyone sing praises.

Coach Lopez talked about how good his team was and how they worked very hard just to get this far.

As they stand in front of the stage to get their awards (a bag of candy), they talk about the great season they had.

In front of the entire school, the cheerleaders do a cheer for the soccer team.

Holdig his rice baby, Clint Mitchell, junior, proudly shows off his parenting skills. "name" was part of a project for his Parent Child Development (PCD) class. Clint seems very happy to share his child with the rest of us.

As the bowling ball moves swiftly toward senior Huyen Dao's face, one can't help but wonder what she is thinking. Ten to one is that her mind is far from the word, "STRIKE!"

Students from Mrs. Richey's World Geography class participated in a project in which they had to create their own tie-dyed shirts, in reference to ancient cultures. Students from left to right are: Mindi Wunsch, Nancy Martin, Megan Badger, Crystal Graham, Kami Thompson, Leslie Colley, Stefanie Gregg, Linda Nguyen, and Eric Collins.

Thinking twice about letting go of the bowling ball is something that goes on in the mind of whoever is doing this experiment. Senior Jeremy Fermo has just seconds to think about his fate before he decides to let go, and these few seconds seem like forever.

One of the more dramatic scenes of Arthur Miller's play, The Crucible, involved the Puritan girls going into maniac-like convulsions before a panel of judges. This scene was acted out by Scott Cessac and Brandon Bradley.

The Wonderful World of Projects

hen you walk into a classroom, what do you expect to see? A teacher lecturing? Students taking notes? Well imagine walking into a classroom, and, at first glance seeing a kid wearing a tie-dyed shirt, holding a Cabbage Patch Kid full of rice, getting a bowling ball swung at his head by the teacher, or lying on a bed of nails. Not to worry, they are just NHS students in the midst of the projects given to them by their caring teachers.

Mrs. VanMarion's physics classes always had some interesting things to do. Two activities in particular, the Bed o' Nails, and a swinging bowling ball were perhaps the most nerve-wracking. There is no such thing as a dull day in physics.

The "rice babies" were a project given to students in Parent-Child Development class. The purpose of the project was to teach the kids how to care for a baby of their own, using a "baby" filled with 5 pounds of rice. Each student was expected to take the "rice baby" wherever he or she went, no matter where.

Other projects given to NHS students include tie-dyed shirts in Mrs. Richey's World Geography class and acting out a scene from The Crucible in Mrs. Parish's junior English classes.

by Michael James

Acting out scenes of Arthur Miller's play, The Crucible, was part of a project given to junior-level honors English students by their teacher, Mrs. Parish. Here, junior Leslie Breaux is acting her part as Abigail before the class, and doing a very good job of it too.

Playing his part as Judge Danforth, junior Justin Marvel gives junior Ross McCall a cold stare, while junior Will Tawney awaits his turn to speak. The students were not forced to memorize their lines and could have their scripts with them as they performed.

Awards Day

Phun

With Science

You say science is boring? Well, think harder. Sure, chemistry II and Physics might be a little difficult, but when learning this important stuff is done outside the classroom rather than indoors, it sheds a whole new light on a somewhat dark terrain. One of the more appealing aspects to the science classes are the field trips that are taken during the year. These trips provide a fun and unique way to learn either of the two subjects. Of course, it would be fun for anybody to learn physics while riding a roller-coaster.

On Friday, April 24, the physics classes took a trip to Astroworld, hoping for some fun in the sun. However, that wasn't the case, because it turned out to be a cold, cloudy day, which didn't bode well for the three students who took two consecutive rides on the Tidal Wave. Though most of the rides were not open, the students had fun making do with the rides that were, and that's all that counts.

Two days earlier, biology II and chemistry II were amused in a different way, traveling to the Anatomy Academy in Houston. While they were there, they saw many different exhibits and interesting items, such as the Drinking and Driving exhibit, all the while learning more of the fascinating subject. All science can be fun to learn, if you make it fun and interesting.

When at Astroworld, a group of students had the once-in-a-lifetime chance to get jiggy with Tweety Bird. Tricia Clements, senior, giggles as she enjoys the dance, while junior Mike Tobias and senior Robert Segovia look on and laugh. After the picture was taken, they continued to laugh. Five minutes later, they laughed some more.

Waiting to get into the Anatomy Academy, the Biology II and Chemistry II students talk amongst themselves, wondering what it will be like inside. The trip to the museum was on April 22, two days before the trip to Astroworld. We here on the yearbook staff planned on identifying each and every person in this picture, but that plan fell through, because we couldn't see the kid sitting on the steps, so.....

When the Biology II students went to the Anatomy Academy, the staff gave them a questionnaire. While senior Jessica Meier is filling hers out, you can be sure that the other students are working hard on theirs as well.

When a British Expedition reached the top of Mount Everest in 1953, they were pretty happy. One can see how happy senior Michael Voivedich is as he makes his way up the climbing wall at Astroworld. The Physics classes took a trip to the amusement park in April, and it was a splendid time for all.

Writing down some information on atherosclerosis, senior Jackie Marmolejo tries her best to finish filling out her questionnaire. The questionnaire was optional, and even if you finished it, you didn't get anything in return.

Look! Up in the sky! It's not a bird! It's not a plane! No, actually, it isn't quite anything but Michael Voivedich and Jason Jones. They are only two out of a handful of NHS students who tried this daredevil ride during Physics Day at Astroworld. Look at all that energy transferring from potential to kinetic. Kind of makes you wonder what you could have learned by staying awake in Mrs. VanMarion's Physics class, huh?

At the Anatomy Academy in Houston, Texas, there was a video game type exhibit that shows how hard it becomes to drive while under the influence of alcohol. Here, Jeremy Watson tries his luck at the game, while Tung Tran looks on.

School Trippin'

Trippin Here, There, and Everywhere.

Do you remember your first field trip? For many, it was to various places, like a zoo, or a museum. During your years in school, you have taken many trips to many different places, but can you think of that special one which will never be forgotten? Here are two examples of those such trips.

Five members of the Spanish club took a trip to Guadalajara, Mexico, to see and study the Mexican ways firsthand.

"It was great, I had a real fun time there," senior Emily Perryman says of the trip. "I didn't want to leave, because Mexico is such a cool place."

While the Spanish Club was in Mexico, another group of students were far away from home as well. The Westernaires took a trip to California and performed at West High School. While on the trip, a few of the Westernaires caught a glimpse of movie star John Travolta (Grease, Saturday Night Fever). Which proves the theory of memorable field trips: The farther the trip, the better it will be.

Killing some time after arriving, junior Westernaires Haley Pope, Molly Chollete, Abigail Edson, Amber Haley, Chelcie Conciene, and sophomore Westernaire Britney Leboeuf take a quick break from their sight seeing, and pose for the neverending camera. The purpose of the Westernaires trip was to perform at West High School in California, and perform they did.

While waiting in a hotel lobby, sophomore Westernaire gals Ashley Carter, Tiffany Stafford, and junior Westernaire Raina Welty are nonetheless excited. To have an out-of-state field trip is quite enough, but when that out-of-state field trip is to California, you can't help but take in all there is to see.

Feeling the need for some amusement, the Spanish entourage visited a local amusement park. As luck was to have it, the park was open, and all who went along shared in the amusement brought to them by this park. It just goes to show you, no matter how old you are, you're never too old to ride the kiddie rides.

While on a tour of Guadalajara, senior Thu Duong finds the time to take a few pictures to help remember her times in Guadalajara. Unfortunately, while she was taking pictures in the airport, security guards forced her to give up her film. Well, look on the bright side Thu: You still have your memories!

While sampling some authentic Mexican cuisine, senior Emily Perryman seems to be enjoying what is known in the Spanish language as la comida. The Spanish trip to Guadalajara was five days, and as important as school is to those five ladies who took the trip, we can be sure they were thinking about us each and every minute.....nah.

A Story 'bout the Westernaires

Gonna listen to a story 'bout the Westernaires, It's not true that all they think of is their hair.
 They always give their total best when they perform at night.
 With their movin', and their dancin', they're a pretty awesome sight!

Good, that is,
 Black and Gold.
 Texas gals.

Now they perform at sporting games and some assemblies,
 But if they stay in Nederland, then no one else can see.
 They went to "Califomy" and performed at West High School,
 And seeing John Travolta there made their trip pretty cool.

Barbarino, that is,
 LA nights.
 Flippin' sights.

-Sung to the tune of "The Beverly Hillbillies" theme song.
 (for more fun, find someone who can play a banjo and sing-a-long!)

Standing among newly-made friends, the Westernaires can be sure that the times they had on this trip will be remembered with pictures like these. While the rest of us may never know who they really met, or what they really did, the Westernaires can rest assured that when they look back twenty years from now, they will venture back into the times of their lives.

Cut to "Purr"fection

The Biology II classes spent the last six weeks of school dissecting cats to learn more about themselves.

Cat Facts

- * The purpose of the Biology II students dissecting cats is to learn more about human biology.
- * The biology classes spent six weeks studying and dissecting their cats.
- * Thirty-five cats were dissected this year.
- * So what was your favorite part of the cat lab?

Jacey Beeson, junior: "It really wasn't that gross. It was actually really fun and helpful in learning about the human biology. My favorite part of the cat was the internal organs."

Donna Willis, Biology II teacher: "The first day when we select the cats and drain them because the kids are so excited about the cats: picking out what color they want, if they want male or female. The first day's my favorite because I enjoy watching the students' excitement. By the time it is over, everybody's tired of the cats."

Tonight marks a solemn occasion in our young lives. For many of us, though, this night should be special, so special that it will be ingrained in our memories forever. It is important to realize, however, that tonight's ceremony would not be possible without four years of hard work, dedication, and perseverance. I personally could thank dozens of teachers, administrators, counselors, friends, and family members for my success, but to mention every one would take hours. So instead tonight, before we toss our caps in the air and have our final gathering at Project Celebration, let us take a few moments to look back at what Nederland High School, at what the old gold and black, has achieved on our watch.

The 1997-1998 school year started as new years always do: it was football season, and the Black Knights of the Neches were showing more promise than ever. When the final battle was over, the Boys in Black had given Nederland its most successful season in thirty years. Not to be overlooked was the outstanding performance of the cheerleaders, the Westernaires, and the Golden Pride of the Golden Triangle, the NHS Marching Band, which thrilled tens of thousands with its halftime shows and won its third straight state military marching championship. Moreover, Coach Joanne Gerace Hill overcame medical difficulties to lead the Academic Challenge Team to a stunning first-round defeat of Bridge City in the Lamar Tournament. Cross Country and Powerlifting had successful seasons to put the cap on a spectacular fall.

After Christmas break, it was time for basketball and soccer teams to shine. Both boys and girls in each sport had outstanding seasons, with girls' basketball and boys' and girls' soccer reaching the playoffs. On an academic note, Acadec reached the state tournament yet again and U.I.L. Math and Science sent two members to regionals. The track team gave NHS its first district track title in decades, and tennis and swimming sent competitors to state. Golf had a good year, and U.I.L. One-Act Play won the district title and advanced to the regional competition. Of course, the year had ended with softball winning its first ever playoff game and going to Austin for the state tournament, and as I speak to you tonight, the baseball Dogs are four victories away from a state title. Do not look on our achievements this year lightly; I would go so far to say that Nederland High School has not had a more successful and gratifying year in both sports and in academics since the state championship years of the fifties. If you have never done so, I would advise you all to drive in front of the high school at night around eleven thirty or twelve o'clock. That welling up of emotion that comes from seeing Big Ned standing his silent vigil over the main foyer, that soaring pride tempered with pangs of sorrow, that is what it means to be graduating as a Nederland Bulldog.

Reflecting on the past is perfectly acceptable and at times necessary and healthy. Nevertheless, we cannot live off our past accomplishments forever if we plan to succeed in today's ever-changing world. Rather, we must reminisce for awhile, cry our fill of the bittersweet tears of fond remembrance, then turn and staunchly face tomorrow. Tomorrow: all of our lives it has been something to be grasped, some indefinite concept not quite understood. But no longer, because tomorrow begins tonight, with these graduating exercises. Another word for graduation is commencement; tonight we commence with the rest of our lives. For some it means joining the work force, or undergoing vocational training. Others will attend institutions of higher education. But whatever path we take, we will share one common bond: we are the 1998 graduating class of Nederland High School.

Our years at Nederland have been both a joy and a privilege. Yes, a privilege, because in few places will you find a school so safe, so conducive to learning, and so well-staffed. However, as we meet together tonight, two members of the staff are fighting the battle of their lives. As many of you know, English and Journalism teacher Regina Cowles is currently suffering from cancer. As you may not know, senior English teacher Helen Reynolds has also been diagnosed with this illness. I am only one person, and we together are only 363 people, but a war can be won on the strength of a single prayer. So I ask you all tonight to remember Ms. Cowles and Ms. Reynolds and their families in your prayers because God is still in the business of working in our lives. I know; without Jesus Christ on my side I can accomplish nothing worthwhile. He is my savior and my king, and I would like to thank Him for filling my life with blessings and gifts.

Hard work, dedication, and perseverance: these are the qualities that have brought us to this most sought-after of ceremonies. Nederland High School has taught us these virtues, and if we hold fast to them our potential is boundless. So I urge you all tonight, I implore you, as we enter the adult world, let us never cease to strive for what is right and what is best. And let us not forget the best four years of our short lives that we spent at NHS. As we leave here tonight, let us make the words of our school song ring true: "Fight, fight for Nederland...Our friendship may she never lack."

Ladies and gentlemen, members of the school board, parents, teachers, friends, and especially, fellow graduates: Welcome to the Nederland High School graduation ceremonies for the class of 1998. Welcome. Simple words begin one of the most crucial events in any person's life and definitely the most important that we as graduates have faced thus far. Oh, certainly, there have been other events: the day we first obtained our driver's license. Our first birthday party. The day a beloved relative died. Yes, there have been other crucial events, but none so life-changing and important to our respective futures as what we have gathered here tonight to witness and take part in.

Looking across the audience as well as at the graduates, I see faces, faces thinking back and remembering. Remembering the first eighteen years and recalling the occasions that have ensconced themselves into our brains as critical and worth remembering. The first day of kindergarten when our mommies and daddies left us screaming in a room full of children and a strange-looking woman sitting in a desk. The birthday party when, for the first time the other gender came. The birthday party when, for the first time the police came. The broken bones suffered and the bruises endured during the innocent playground activities. We remember these things.

We remember the changes passing from one school to the next as the early stages of public education burned out behind us and the new ones burst into power. We remember...fifth grade. Seventh grade. Ninth grade. We recall the first time we failed a test. We remember the first time we brought home a report card with every grade above a ninety, and we were proud of ourselves. We recall with disgust the first "B," the first "D," the first "F." We remember missing school for hurricanes, ice storms...bombs.

We remember the trips. Band trips, Westernaire trips, football playoff road games, UIL competitions. The times we won---the times we lost. The broken down buses, the fabulous hotels, the walks on the beach or by the river, the sunburns. We remember the injuries that kept us from competing in the most important game or meet of the entire year. We remember all of these---the classes, the assignments, the competition, the grades, the dances, the social activities---these are the events that we call our youth, and these are the experiences we will take with us and use to shape our future.

None of us share the same memories of events, but there is one constant, one binding tie, and that is our memories of the people who were with us and the people who helped and shape us into what we profess to be. Fellow graduates, not one person here tonight wearing a cap and gown has come this far alone. There have been teachers---the biology teacher who aided you in your college quest. The band director who, to say the least, was one of the most...interesting teachers you ever met. The calculus teacher who made it seem easy. The English teacher who taught you write. The history teacher, the UIL sponsor, the counselor, the principal, to name a few---all of these have shaped our lives, and to these I owe my personal gratitude. There have been our parents---those who have raised us, taught us, loved us, cared even when we did not, stayed up late worrying about our future. To mine, I say thanks, and to them I own my life. There has been God who loves us and works in all of us, whether we acknowledge his power or not. There were those outside of school---your church family, who guided you spiritually and emotionally. There have been the friends---oh, the friends, those with whom we sit tonight, those who are most like us, those who have understood us when no adult could. This, perhaps, is the hardest pill: those with whom we have spent seven hours a day for twelve years---most of them we will never see again. Graduates, do not leave tonight without saying thank you to those people who mean the world to you and whom you will remember forever.

It is true that graduation is a time of endings. Tonight ends our tenure in free public education, a unique experience in itself. Even those who will be continuing their education at a university---it's not the same. Tonight ends twelve years of memories and relationships that can never be relived.

But even with all that ends, there is even more that begins when the hats fly and the tassels spin. Graduates, our entire lives have thus far been devoted to forming and planning dreams for the future. Tonight, those dreams begin. Tonight begins seventy-five percent of a life that has not yet been lived. Tonight begins your chance to make up for all that you regret in the past, and yes, you can make up for it. Carte blanche, a clean slate---that is what we get tonight in addition to the rolled up diploma.

To the audience, I present the Nederland High School graduating class of 1998. The future. In conclusion, I say graduates, get ready. Tonight, your future---your life---begins.

Thank you.

ACADEMIC DECATHLON

TRAVELS TO STATE

This year's Acadec team placed higher than ever before.

1998 ACADEMIC DECATHLON

*The purposes of the Academic Decathlon are to encourage students to develop a greater respect for knowledge, to stimulate intellectual growth and achievement, and to encourage public interest and awareness of outstanding programs in our school.

* A full Acadec team has nine students: three whose GPA falls into the "C" or varsity division, three from the "B", or scholastic, category, three from the honors category.

*At the regional meet in January at South Houston High School, the team placed third overall, enabling them to attend the state meet at San Antonio College.

*Individual awards at the regional meet include: third place in honors interview-Emily Perryman, third place in scholastic literature-Michael Adix, and third place in varsity science-Sedgwick Redding.

*At the state meet in February the team placed tenth, Nederland's highest finish ever.

*Individual awards at state meet include first place honors interview-Wendy Scoggins, second place varsity essay-Rachel Quinn, and third place in honors speech-Len Weeks.

*"I really had fun at Acadec this year, because individually we did not get many medals, but as a team we pulled together and did better than ever before." said Rachel Quinn, senior.

Black and Gold Shows Through

The Nederland High School band has worked hard this year. They brought home the National Association of Military Marching Bands award for the third consecutive year. They continue the year with practicing for concert season competitions. "The 1997 marching season was the most successful I can remember. Along with the marching band, I witnessed great attitude and commitment from the individual band members," said band director, Mr. Rose. He also said that the band members will carry memories of this season for many years into the future.

Pride carries memories and rewards for students.

The band lines up at the sideline while waiting for the Westernaires to get ready.

Members of the band, march to "The Southerner" at the city wide playoff pep rally.

Lydia Dickinson, sophomore, performs at a pep rally. "Marching band brings out individuality in students as they work together to be the best band possible." Lydia said.

The band performs at the pep rally, they play songs for the flags, twirlers, and other songs just to get the crowd spirited for the big game.

Angela Sosa, sophomore, plays the trumpet at the playoff pep rally.

"I like band because it is a wonderful way to learn the skill of playing an instrument. It is a great extracurricular activity. I also enjoy going to competitions and going on trips," said Sosa.

Christine Weeks, freshman, waits to line up before the band's halftime performance at the Port Neches-Groves.

Laura Bianchi, sophomore, and Tanith Kingston, freshman, march in the Homecoming parade, to the traditional fight song.

Spanish Honor Society starts off the year by holding officer election at the first meeting. "I was surprised to see that there would be a big turnout at our first meeting," said Marjan Rahmani, senior.

Leigh Judkins voices her ideas towards other club members on what they can do for fund raisers.

Members of the Spanish Honor Society decide and prepare for the induction of the new members.

Tina Phan, Kevin Berklene, and Phuong Nguyen just got nominated to be in National Honor Society.

In November the Spanish Honor Society volunteers to help out the community. "We had a lot of fun going door to door collecting canned food. I think it was a big accomplishment because it was a lot of hard work for a good cause, but it was fun at the same time," said Thu Duong, senior, and SHS vice-president.

Student Council is a group that shows leadership among their peers. Throughout the year they perform many good deeds for the school and the community. They brought drug awareness to the student body during Red Ribbon Week, and they spent time with the special education classes at elementary schools. "I have been in student council for four years, and I enjoyed every single year," said Kristen Borel, senior. Lindsey Sessions, senior, said "I am happy that I met other students, and I had a good time helping others."

Once again, the Bulldogs battled the LC-M Battlin' Bears for the right to go to Austin

This year was supposed to be a rebuilding year, but the baseball team was District 20-4A co-champion with LC-M

At one time during the season, every member of the baseball team was hitting above .300. This was one of the main reasons for the team's success.

The 'Dogs were ranked No. 6 in the state for most of the season, but they still managed to beat the No. 1 team, LC-M, to advance to Austin.

The dugout looks on intently as the 'Dogs try to put the Bears away.

Team members rush onto the field after Brad Sullivan, sophomore, made the final out of the game, and the Bulldogs won 3-2 over the Bears in game one.

Team members watch from the dugout as Andy Holder, senior, steps up to the plate in game one of the regional final against LC-M.

Jereme Havard, senior, gets caught in a rundown between third base and home plate in the early innings in the first game of the LC-M series.

Number two pitcher, Brad Sullivan, sophomore, started the first game of the LC-M series instead of Jesse Floyd, junior. Floyd started the second game and helped the team get back to Austin.

Michael Melancon, junior, prepares to round third and score in the first inning against LC-M.

After a short meeting at third base, the team runs out onto the field to warm up before the LC-M Bears come up to bat.

BULLDOGS

The Lady Bulldog softball team advanced to the state tournament for the first time ever

The team had never won a playoff game in its history until this year when the Lady 'Dogs won five before they lost to Fossil Ridge in the state tournament

DOGS REPEAT

HISTORY

FENNER LEADS THE DOGS IN THEIR NINTH CONSECUTIVE DISTRICT WIN.

Alana Fenner, senior, goes in for the kill to win the point. "I really enjoyed tennis, and I got a scholarship to play for Lamar. I was here for two years and had a great team. Coach Lopez really pushed me and the team to play our best," Alana Fenner, senior -photo by Marjan Rahmani

"I remember myself playing as a freshman, scared and afraid, playing the sport that I love and loving it. I worked hard and accomplished many goals. Winning a district title as a freshman is an accomplishment not many can say. Everyone told me I was talented and that I could only get better, but these were high expectations for one so young. Somewhere along the path, tennis just became tennis, just a game. You see, tennis was no longer fun because I was living someone else's dreams, not my own. And now as a senior of the tennis team, I have had to show leadership and poise. I have had to forget my problems and play. My only regret is that I was never able to fulfill the dreams everyone had for me. But now at least, I have regained the love I once had for this game. And the team this year was able to give that precious gift to me," Liz Elefano, senior.

Senior Liz Elefano, hits a backhand in the Lamar tournament. Elefano secured the Bulldogs' district win in the fall. -photo by Marjan Rahmani

"I like tennis and I'm definitely going to miss it next year. It was cool having other schools intimidated to see the Nederland team. It is nice to see that our hard work throughout the year has made such an impact. I want to thank Ivy Arce and Liz Elefano for putting up with me when we played doubles," said Erin Walker, senior.

Debate

When we first met we never imagined how close we would become. And now when we look back we can see all the fun and crazy times that we've created. But no matter how hard times get, we know that we will always be there for each other to lean on.

Left: Amanda Thomas, Heather Holmes, Erica VanVelson, Angela Halter, Jessica Nicklebur, and Jennifer Stepp

Good friends, good times,
good guys, and good sons.

Our love,
Your Moms & Dads

Jason Butler

It seems like just yesterday . . . Where have all the years gone? You have grown into a handsome young man with an enthusiastic spirit and good heart. We are very proud of you!
Stay true to yourself and may God bless you in all you do!

Mom, Dad,
Zac, & Holden

To Our Double Delights:

You will never know the joy and happiness the two of you have brought us. Ya'll have always been the love of our lives and always will be. We wish you the very best that life has to offer. Always remember, no matter how high the mountain or how deep the ocean, we will always be there for you both. May God Bless you every step of the way. We love you both with all our hearts!

21 SUGGESTIONS FOR SUCCESS

1. Marry the right person. This one decision will determine 90% of your happiness or misery.
2. Work at something you enjoy and that's worthy of your time and talent.
3. Give people more than they expect and do it cheerfully.
4. Become the most positive and enthusiastic person you know.
5. Be forgiving of yourself and others.
6. Be generous.
7. Have a grateful heart.
8. Persistence, persistence, persistence.
9. Discipline yourself to save money on even the most modest salary.
10. Treat everyone you meet like you want to be treated.
11. Commit yourself to constant improvement.
12. Commit yourself to quality.
13. Understand that happiness is not based on possessions, power or prestige, but on relationships with people you love and respect.
14. Be loyal.
15. Be honest.
16. Be a self-starter.
17. Be decisive even if it means you'll sometimes be wrong.
18. Stop blaming others. Take responsibility for every area of your life.
19. Be bold and courageous. When you look back on your life, you'll regret the things you didn't do more than the ones you did.
20. Take good care of those you love.
21. Don't do anything that wouldn't make you Mom proud.

Julee Parsons

OUR GIRL JULEE

Life with Julee has been on the run,
Travelin' has always been priority one.
Turtle and boat were too slow,
Customs in the Caymans said,
"Let this girl go."
From Nederland to Disney,
To Purgatory and D.C.
You have done it in style,
Even meeting the governor with a smile.
Maybe we did spoil,
But in school you did toil.
With each reached goal you have grown,
Into a young woman who will never be alone.
So let us be loud, we are so proud,
Of our girl Julee.
You are loved by your Family.

Brittanie, You were our little darling, fluffy petticoats, ruffled dresses, lacy socks, ribbons & bows. Then came the years of, "Mom I can't bring a lunch kit to school, I'll be a nerd," "Don't kiss me bye anymore in the parking lot," and "You can't come eat lunch with me anymore." Then you went to high school. You started your years for your career. You have done excellent, and we are so proud of you. You have kept your values and maintained your walk with God. You have been a great joy in our lives. May you capture all your dreams. You will have a great future if you keep God in it. We love you!

Friends we are and Friends we will be,
however faraway or near - we will see.
A friendship like ours is the most special kind,
one that will last until the end of time.

Thank you my friends for all the special memories I will cherish forever, and will remember in every endeavor.

Mrs. Cowles,

We the 1997-1998 journalism students of Nederland High School would like to thank you for all that you have done for us and all that you have taught us this year. We learned a great deal about courage and strength this year from you. We also learned how kind and generous that people can be. This year, however difficult for us all, we call it successful. In all of the turmoil we managed to get through it together, and most importantly we kept our spirits. We wish you good luck in all of your trials ahead, and we pray for you to conquer that awful disease known as cancer. We will always remember you smiling and all of the fun times we shared. We just wanted to take time to say thanks, and we love you!

Love always,

The Journalism Staffs

This was a very busy year for us all. For me, it was especially busy. I just wanted to take time out to say THANKS to those who have made my junior year so special.

Sarah, Scott, and Jessica - Thanks for always being there for me and for listening to my problems.

Mom - Thanks for being everything you do for me, but especially thank you for being my friend.

Gran & Pop - Thanks for always putting up with me!

All of the athletic teams, coaches, and sponsors - Thanks for always taking time out of your busy schedules to talk with me even though you would much rather be doing something else.

And to all others - Thanks for helping this year be a success and one that I'll always remember!

Sincerely,
Lori Cain
Bulldog Beat Editor

We, the centennial class of Nederland High School, dedicate our senior year to Principal Stephen G. Fleming.

Mr. Fleming has the the foundation that we have built our high school career upon. Whether it was cheering in the stands at football games, showing the extremity of his Nederland Bulldog pride and spirit at pep rallies, doing comedy routines at project celebration to make us laugh or just standing quietly in the background wishing us good luck on our acedemic conquests, he has been there through it all. One thing we can never forget about high school is how Mr. Fleming taught us to believe in ourselves and to know we are special whether we win or lose - succeed or fall. We are truly lucky to have a wonderful principal as well as devoted friend. We owe him a great deal of gratitude and now is the time to give a little back.

Thank you Principal Fleming for all that you have done for us the past four years. We could not have been such of a success with out your constant support and understanding. Thanks for the memories that we will cherish forever.

Parting is such sweet sorrow

Regina Cowles- The beginning of the year was a big headache, but all headaches go away. This year seemed like a hard year for the both of us. But I guess that's what makes it memorable. I wish you happiness and success throughout your long life.

Abbey Bean- Thank you for teaching me all that I know about yearbook. Too bad it didn't come into use this year. I'm glad we became friends, and I'm looking forward to seeing you at UT.

Stephanie Bear- I was right: yearbook misses you! Susan followed in your footsteps and worked on two or three layouts at a time. As you can tell in this book, creativity was lacking in some sections.

Ivy Arce- This year was a great year for us. We became closer in that "special way." I enjoyed relying on you for everything in yearbook, but next year you can prey on some other innocent staff member. You are a great help to me, and I'm glad that you were a part of my staff. Remember to make your senior year the best, and good luck in yearbook!

Mike Tobias- I will always pronounce your last name wrong! I'm glad that you transferred to our school and not some other district. You're a talented writer and very creative. I think that you have adjusted very well to Nederland and you're very lucky for that. Good luck with Ivy next year because WOMEN ARE SUPERIOR, and we won't cook for you either! Make your senior year in yearbook and at school memorable.

Dana Ladner- I've known you for three years, but we've become friends our junior year and more our senior year. I know you love the academics, but the memories of breakfast will definitely outweigh yearbook days.

Texas will miss you and your silliness. Don't let Maksis forget me either! Senior Days with Dana: Calculus over at your house, South Park Wednesdays, lunches during fourth lunch on black days, hours at the barn, and movie nights.

Marjan Rahmani- I know this year kinda SUCKED for us, but college nights are ahead of us! At first you thought being a head photographer wasn't a lot of responsibility, but boy, were you wrong. You had a lot of fun with the senior section too. I hope that you find that friendship that you want, and I'm sorry that I couldn't give it to you. By the way, aren't you glad I conned you into being in yearbook?

Susan Vo- DON'T LET STRESS RULE YOUR LIFE!! You always joke about not wanting to be in this class; well, it's not my fault! But you have to admit that there were some fun times. Plus you had some study periods so therefore the class was good for something. Thanks for staying friends with me for so long.

Shannon Copeland- We had lots of fun together: calculus, aide period, and prom. You're a great person, and I have all the faith in the world that you will live out a long, prosperous life filled with happiness. One of the main reasons I believe this is because you deserve all the happiness and love in the world. Out of all of the yearbook members, you were here the longest and worked the hardest. I am so glad that you were a part of the staff.

Emily Perryman- Yearbook was a BREEZE for you. I enjoyed the five or six years I have known you, and I look forward to the next five or so years. Thanks to your hard work in yearbook, we won't have as many comments next year on spelling and other grammar. I'm glad it was you that proofread and not me. Don't let your fiery red hair weigh you down!

Erin Walker- Tennis with you was fun, but I sucked when I was your tennis partner. I wonder what happened to you because you have changed so much during these high school years. Of course you're still shy. I hope you enjoyed yearbook, and your college years will be the best ever. Have fun, and meet NEW people at college.

Meghan Trevey- This year seemed to be a lot better than last, huh? We've gone through years of Journalism together, ever since middle school. Those were the good old days. It's been great through it all. Thanks for being such a hard worker.

Brian Turpen- Thanks for being the stress reliever. You added a lot of laughs to the class, and I enjoyed being in yearbook with you for these years. I don't think you're a liar, though.

Chris Robinson- Thank god we don't have to call you every morning to get you up at school! You did great as a first-year member. You learned really fast, got your pages done, and I'm proud of you.

Lara Cascio- I'm glad that we went to prom together. I understand your pain when you had to do the group shot section! Well, I know that you will have fun in college so I won't have to mention that.

Kristen Fournier- You were always quiet in class (at least to me). Thanks for being a great staff member, and I have enjoyed being with you in yearbook.

Tabitha Taylor- This was your first year, and I'm sure it seemed to be new and awkward. But the next year will be totally different and much more fun, especially because you're a senior.

Josh Loftin- Thanks for trying hard on your pages. If at times it seemed like I was mad at you, I wasn't. I was probably stressed about school and yearbook. Sorry if sometimes you received some of my crap, but it wasn't your fault.

Roxanne Hamuth- You're a wonderful photographer and a partier. I'm glad you were a photographer. Because of you we have some kick --- pictures!

Renee Hamm- We had fun at Austin! You are so quiet in class. Thank you so much for doing everything I asked you for and not giving me any problems. I could always ask you to do something, and I would know it would get done. Have a blast next year and the following. You'll learn more each year and have more fun each year.

Brad Bear- Learn responsibility and motivation, and you're set. Thanks for missing so many assignments, but at least you weren't a bad sport. Keep to journalism because I believe that you can do it.

Hon Duong- Thank you for all the support you have given to me. You have dedicated all your love, time, and dedication to my life. I appreciate everything that you have done for me. At times I have not shown you my gratitude, but I love you, and that will surely never change.

Lynn Duong- We aren't the closest sisters, but in due time we will be. Thank you for all of your advice, dedication, and guidance. This year especially I thank you for all the "talks" we had.

Trang Duong- Thanks, Dad! Although it seems like you interrogate me about my SAT scores all the time, I know you care about me a lot. To sum it all up, I love you.
