Hi folks--

Not to be an alarmist, but I hope you're having conversations as an organization about appropriate responses should the coronavirus situation in the U.S. change. Colleges are beginning to put restrictions on student and faculty travel--so far, only international travel--but there could well be further advisories and cancellations as the situation develops, and these could well have a serious impact on the organization and on the success of the convention.

I know it's very preliminary and hopefully the situation does not deteriorate, but please do keep us all in the loop as decisions are made--even informing the advisors at this point that you are having discussions would be reassuring to hear.

my two cents, and thanks for all the work you do, Becky L.
