

Life In A Global Pandemic

In what follows, the viewer will get to know about my life during the COVID-19 pandemic. The photos are arranged chronologically from what I was doing when school got closed, to having no baseball season my senior year, to what I did to entertain myself during the pandemic, to graduating, and to going to college. The photos are not of me because I do not really have any photos of me but they are instead of the things I was doing.

School Closed

It was Friday, March 13th 2020 and I was listening to this album which is “Lil Uzi Vert vs. the World 2” when I had found out school was going to be closed. At first they had said it was going to be two weeks but it ended up being for the rest of the year.

No Baseball

I had been playing baseball for every year since I was in pre school and had been on JV for my freshman and sophomore years of high school and varsity for my junior year. At first they had pushed the start to the season back but eventually canceled it. I was going to be a starting pitcher on varsity so I was upset when there was no season.

Entertainment During A Pandemic

There was not a lot to do while the pandemic was happening so I watched these shows. Outer Banks was about four teens looking for treasure connected to one of their fathers who disappeared. The Last Dance was about the life of NBA player Michael Jordan and how he was a six time NBA champion.

Graduation Day

On June 8, 2020 I had graduated from high school. Graduation was different from previous years because of the pandemic. What my school did was they had each student sign up for a time of ten minutes where they went to the high school and walked across the stage and got their diploma.

Going To College

After high school I went to Springfield College. My major is communication/sports journalism. Before the pandemic I would have never expected to have to wear masks to class and around campus and to have to socially distance six feet apart in class.
