Subject: Boston Chapel pioneers - Your vital input

What a wonderful, wonderful response, Mr. Crew (Bob), evoking tears of joy here.

Thank you, and God bless you. What you have written and provided is already an important addition to the archives. Anything your mother may add will be tantamount to pure gold. Jay Bergers has been a fountainhead of vital early information. The example of your Dad and Jay and Fred Wenger and Ted Esselstyn and Hazel Goodwin and Bea Wycoff and John Cramer and Nevin Crouse and other early evangelistic ENC student pioneers in their courageous commitment and hard work in the 1950s has provided great motivation in preserving the Boston Chapel story. Noted Nazarene historian Dr. James Cameron and Eastern Nazarene College Archivist Erin McCoy and Professor Emeritus Carolyn Lanpher-Waterman have provided invaluable guidance. With great appreciation, Jim Tasker

(Post Script: At this time, we are emending our will, and will be seeking some guidance from the Foundation in the near future. Thank you again).

Mr. Tasker and Mr. Bergers,

What a delight it was to get your email and learn of the ENC Boston Chapel archival project. I know the Boston Chapel was an important part of my dad's life and ministry. His compassion ran deep for the less fortunate and this continued throughout his ministry as he was involved in the Kansas City Rescue Mission in later years.

I will pass your inquiry on to my mother, Joan Dorskocil. Unfortunately, I don't have information that would be useful for your project. However, I'm hopeful my mom will. I do know that as they were first dating at ENC my dad took her down to the Chapel to work and hold services on weekends. Finally, one day my mom asked if they could go on a "real date" instead of to the Chapel.

God bless you.
