The Tiers parking lot drew many people to view the Tall Ships parade on July 4th.

Wagner's lively summer

by Beth Fandrei

The Wagner College campus was far from deserted this past summer. In addition to summer session Wagner's facilities were used by such diverse groups as the Sandefjord (Norway) Girls Choir and the New York City Jaycees. And the campus's fantastic view of New York Harbor attracted many to view the passing of the tall ships on July 4.

For the festivities on July 4th Harbor View Hall was filled to capacity with alumni and their families who jumped at the chance to rent a room with a clear view of the harbor. As it turned out, the U.S.S. Forrestal (the reviewing ship, with President Ford and other dignitaries aboard) was anchored almost directly below Harbor View. Many Staten Islanders made their way to Wagner to sit on the grass or stand in the Tiers parking lot to see the ships.

For the summer session students living in Harbor View it was a confusing weekend as their previously quiet, almost empty dorm filled with people and a pass became necessary to enter. Each student received 4 guest passes in addition to

Wagner saddened by loss of two faculty during summer

The campus community was saddened this summer by news of the deaths of two Wagner faculty members, Dr. Frank Nichols and Prof. Janith Hackenburg.

Dr. Frank Nichols, associate professor of sociology and anthropology, died suddenly July 9th while vacationing in Colorado with his children.

a member of the department of sociology and anthropology since 1969, Dr. Nichols was appointed an associate professor in 1973 and served as chairman of the department from 1973 through 1975. He was a graduate of California

State College and received his master's and Ph.D. degrees from Stanford University.

Dr. Nichols is survived by his wife, Marilyn, and three children.

Janith M. Hackenburg, assistant professor of education, died July 22. She had served the College in the department of education since 1959.

Prof. Hackenburg, who is survived by a daughter, Carolyn, received both her bachelor's and master's degrees from Wagner. She was a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority.

Memorial services on campus for both Dr. Nichols and Prof. Hackenburg are planned.

Faculty votes to strike Negotiations continue

by Shatanof

(Friday, Sept. 10) If no agreement can be reached between the faculty and administration by 8 a.m. Monday, September 13, there will be a faculty strike at Wagner College.

The administration has taken the position that they will not discuss the issues with the press as long as the negotiations are in progress. However, Dr. Jane Bacher, the president of the college chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) and the Wagner faculty spokesperson, informed the Wagnerian today that the disagreement centers upon wage provisions rather than the question of governance (which was a major stumbling block in the negotiations for the 1974 contract that is still in effect).

She reports that the issue in this year's dispute is the matter of equitable salaries. The faculty claims that an AAUP study shows that there are many inequities in the wages of members of the teaching staff and they propose that the situation be rectified by instituting a comprehensive wage-scale with regular steps based upon the teacher's rank and years of service.

The administration, on the other hand, denies that inequity exists and favors a plan that makes merit judgement the major factor in the establishment of yearly increments in salary.

And, according to one faculty source, the administration's latest offer of a 4% across the board wage increment with an insignificant additional increase "by merit" is unacceptable to the union.

Backed up by the unanimous strike vote taken at a union faculty meeting in the Unitarian Church on Filmore Street last Wednesday, the faculty negotiating team (Carlyle Haaland, Yohann Schultz, Edith Schmitt, Keith Addy, and Tom Henkel) will meet with the administration representatives (William Maher, Egon Wendel, and Norbert Leeseberg) to press their demands for a higher wage increase and a schedule of salaries rather than an across the board pay hike.

As of this time negotiations are going on and Russ Johnson, speaking for the administration, is still hopeful that cool heads will prevail, that an agreement will be reached before Monday morning and, thus, the strike will be averted.

his or her own, so many residents had guests for the weekend.

The view was good from almost anywhere in the building, but there was enough of a haze to make trying to take pictures a waste of film. An even greater disappointment was the haze during the fireworks display that evening which almost entirely obscured the Statue of Liberty.

With conferences and workshops coming in and out all summer the office of Campus Programming, which coordinates use of college facilities, was busy keeping everything straight. New signs sprouted from trees and lightposts every few days as the groups came and went. When the group was from a foreign country, as with the Sandefjord Girls Choir, signs appeared in the appropriate language.

The members of the Norwegian choir, visiting the U.S. on a singing tour, were so fascinated with the vending machines in the lobby of Harbor View that they quickly exhausted the contents—so signs went up in Norwegian warning against further use.

Wagner's gym played host to two graduation ceremonies in mid-June, those of Bernstein Junior High School and Intermediate School 61. Unlike Wagner's own commencement a month earlier these ceremonies enjoyed excellent weather.

Use of Wagner facilities continues during the school year, although on a much smaller scale. Two floors in Harbor View Hall have been reserved for use exclusively by outside groups. This permits accomodation of a maximum of about 85 people. Use of college facilities during the year generates additional income for Wagner; while no figures are available yet it is certain that a profit was made during the summer.

For conference and workshop use Wagner has an ideal location and excellent facilities. The close proximity to New York City and all it has to offer, coupled with the suburban setting of the campus is a perfect combination for many groups. Harbor View Hall, well appointed and air conditioned, is almost like a hotel. Classrooms make good meeting rooms, and there are even tennis courts available for relaxation.

More than 2500 people in 20 groups took advantage of what Wagner has to offer this past summer alone.

Letters

To the Student Body of Wagner College:

I extend my greetings to the incoming Freshmen, upper-classmen and transfer students. I hope your summer was enjoyable and your upcoming scholastic year highly productive.

This year, socially, I hope will be very rewarding for members of B.C. We've planned several outings, dances and events for the whole year of which I know everyone will participate in. For openers a Bar-B-Q Bus Outing is scheduled for Saturday, September 18th to Hecksher State Park. This outing will be FREE of charge. A Disco is also scheduled for Friday the 17th so be prepared to be up 24 hrs. The main purpose of this outing is to become acquainted with one another and is an attempt to eliminate racial segregation and class apathy. Black Concern is open to ALL students sympathetic to the Black Concern for Black awareness.

In closing I wish to inform all that my door is always open. The Black Concern office is located in the New Administration Building room 130 and I am in Harbor View Hall. If there are any questions, do not hesitate to ask me or anyone on the executive board.

Love, Power, and Unity,
Arthur Williams

Calder Foundation gives Wagner $20,000

Announcement of the receipt of a grant of $20,000 in unrestricted funds from the Louis Calder Foundation to Wagner College was made on June 29 by Louis DeLuca, director of development and public relations.

According to Mr. DeLuca the grant, which will be given as scholarships to Wagner students with preference to promising nursing students, becomes a part of Wagner's overall program of financial aid which annually gives one million dollars in aid to Wagner students.

"The Louis Calder Foundation," notes Mr. DeLuca, "has assumed a leadership role in educational philanthropy for a long time. They have, throughout the years, provided an opportunity for future leaders of our society to obtain a worthwhile education."

The grant from the Calder Foundation comes at a time when the Wagner College Annual Fund drive is drawing to a close as the most successful drive in the history of the college.

GMAT given three days this year

The Graduate Management Admission Test (GMAT) will be offered on Oct. 30, 1976 and on Jan. 29, March 26, and July 9, 1977. The GMAT is a test of academic aptitude designed to estimate a student's promise to succeed in a graduate program leading to an MBA or equivalent degree. About 500 graduate schools of management require applicants to submit GMAT results.

Registration materials and the GMAT Bulletin of Information are available from the Graduate Division Office, Rm. 108, N.A.B., or by writing to GMAT, Educational Testing Service, Box 966, Princeton, N.J. 08540.

The regular GMAT fee of $12.50 includes a score report sent to the student, to his undergraduate counseling/placement office, and up to three graduate schools designated on the registration form. Registration forms and fees must be received at ETS on or before the deadline listed in the bulletin. A $4 late fee is charged for registration forms received after the deadline.

Students who cannot register in advance may consider registering at the test center on the day of the test. Walk-in registration is allowed at all test centers if space and test materials remain after all pre-registered students have been admitted. To be admitted as a walk-in registrant a student must present a completed registration form and a check or money order for the regular test fee plus an additional $10 service fee. The $4 late registration fee does not apply here.

Dates for teacher exams set

Three test dates for the National Teacher Examinations have been announced by Educational Testing Service. The dates for the testing of prospective teachers are: Nov. 13, 1976, February 19, 1977, and July 16, 1977. The tests will be given at nearly 400 locations throughout the country.

Results of the exams are used by many school districts as a part of their selection of new teachers and by some states for certification or licensing of teachers. Some colleges also require all seniors preparing to teach to take the tests.

The Educational Testing Service is a nonprofit educational organization which prepares and administers these tests.

On each full day of testing, prospective teachers may take the Common Examinations which measure their professional preparation and general background and an Area Examination which measures their mastery of the subject they plan to teach.

Prospective teachers should contact the school systems in which they hope to work, or their college, for specific advice on which examinations to take and on what dates.

The Bulletin of Information for Candidates contains a list of test centers and other general information about the tests, and a Registration Form. Copies may be obtained from college placement officers, school personnel departments, or directly from National Teacher Examinations, Box 911, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N.J. 08540.

Rockefeller donates vase to Wagner museum

Vice-President Nelson A. Rockefeller has donated a pre-Columbian pottery vessel from his private collection to the Museum of Archaeology at Staten Island located at Wagner College. The announcement was made by Jacques Noel Jacobsen, Jr., president of the Archaeology Society of Staten Island, which operates the Museum.

The pre-Columbian vessel, a characteristic example of the Nazca style of southern Peru, was obtained through the efforts of Dr. Francis H. Horn who retired recently as executive vice-president of Wagner and a former college classmate of Vice-President Rockefeller at Dartmouth.

The distinguishable stylistic traits of the piece are datable to approximately 1-200 A.D. The 5½ inch high vessel is crafted in the form of a naturalistically rendered bird (possibly a seagull) holding a fish in its beak.

Bright polychrome colors painted in slip and ranging from white and gray through red embellish the vessel articulating many of the fine detailed features.

Complementing the large collection at the Museum of pre-Columbian artifacts, including several Nazca pieces, the new addition, according to Mr. Jacobsen, "is quite different from any of the other pieces in the Museum's collection, and highlights the grouping quite nicely."

The Archaeology Museum, which opened its doors on the third floor of Wagner's Main Hall March 21 of this year, houses a quarter million dollar collection of antiquities, with some pieces more than 6000 years old. It is the only museum operated by a member society of the Archaeological Institute of America.

The vessel will be on view at the Museum during regular hours: 1 through 4:30 p.m., Sundays and Wednesdays; and 10 a.m. through 4:30 p.m., Tuesdays.

Medical Careers: You don't have to become a doctor

by Diane Auerbach

(CPS)--Anxiety is running at fever pitch in biology labs and chemistry classes around the country these days as the nation's medical schools send rejections to the thousands of pre-med students who didn't make the final cut.

Getting into med school is tougher than ever. Four years ago there were only two applicants for each position, but this year a record 43,000 students applied for the 15,000 freshman places in U.S. medical schools, according to the American Medical Association.

Most rejected students view their med school turnaround as a personal failure, a sure sign they should hang up health care and enlist for a stint in grad school. Yet 75% of the rejected med school applicants have the skill to successfully graduate from medical schools, according to a recent study by the American Association of Medical Schools.

There is a way to bypass the medical school admissions bottleneck. Although medical doctors control the market in salary and social prestige, a number of new health professions rival the M.D. monopoly in the opportunity to deal directly with patients.

Here's a rundown of new or little-known health professions:

Nurse Practitioner: One step beyond registered nursing, this new field allows nurses to work with their own case load of patients, caring for them quite independently, although under the supervision of a physician.

Many nurse practitioners work in pediatrics, geriatrics or gynecology, dealing directly with patients, diagnosing their problems and giving complete physical examinations. About all nurse practitioners can't do is prescribe drugs or perform surgery. Some work as old-time mid-wives and deliver babies. Training is about a year beyond R.N. schooling, which includes several months of clinical work. Salaries start at about $12,000, a couple thousand above R.N. base pay. For information, call up the nursing schools in your area.

Emergency Medical Technician: This is a new field, originally designed to make use of the skills of para-medics back from Vietnam. Emergency medical technicians (EMT) work in hospital emergency rooms, rescue units or as ambulance attendants, and operate advanced life support systems. There are two levels of EMT's: the first allows technicians to manually aid patients--to treat shock and wounds, for instance; advanced EMT para-medics use sophisticated equipment such as cardiac monitors and may even administer drugs, while in radio contact with physicians.

Most EMT programs require that students be over 18 and have jobs as ambulance attendants. Job opportunities vary greatly from state to state. Starting salaries usually begin at $8,000, although some cities and small towns depend on the services of volunteers. Interested students should beware of school programs for operating room technicians, as this occupation has little direct contact with patients. Write to the Department of Transportation, National Highway Traffic Administration, Washington D.C., 20590 and ask for brochures on EMT training.

Physicians' Assistants: These people work in hospital clinics or with privately-practicing physicians in orthopedic, ophthalmology, pediatrics or other medical specialties. Physicians' assistants also work under the supervision of physicians, but can do much of the medical work a doctor does. Most school programs, offered in medical schools, require that applicants complete two years of undergraduate school, including a year each of biology, physiology and chemistry. Students then study from two to five years in a specialized field. Starting salaries are about $14,000 a year. These programs are brand new and may take some digging to find. Contact medical schools in your area. Beware of jobs labeled Medical Assistant: these are secretarial assistants to physicians.

Chiropractor: Chiropractors are the closest thing to M.D.'s in the sense that they work out of their own offices, without a M.D.'s supervision. Chiropractic is a medical profession based on spinal manipulation. Since the nerves connected to the spine control all body functions, a misaligned backbone can upset body metabolism like digestion and immunity responses, as well as foul up posture and cause chronic back pain. Chiropractors work to realign the spine and allow the body to better heal itself.

Prerequisites for chiropractic students are two years of undergraduate school, including at least six credit hours of biology or organic chemistry. Students then go on to four years of chiropractic schools, costing about $2,000 a year, before they can tackle the state boards. Starting pay is $14,000, which increases to an average of $24,000. Although there are 13 chiropractic colleges in the U.S., only four have been accredited so far. Most states require practicing chiropractors to be graduates of accredited schools. For more information and the addresses of accredited schools, contact: Council on Chiropractic Education, 2200 Grand Ave., Des Moines, Iowa, 50312.

Tips for new students

From some old students who wish they had known!

Pass-Fail Option: Learn when and how to use it. It can save you lots of headaches in a course and can keep a D off your record—or even a C (which can play havoc with an otherwise good index).

Advisors: An advisor assigned to a student at freshman registration is usually not a member of the student's major department; don't wait until the end of the semester to get advice from a faculty member in your major department. Sometimes early advice has saved a student from taking a class that is too advanced in the first semester—and thus, saved him from a poor mark on his record and/or a lot of aggravation.

Professors: Don't be afraid to ask an upperclassman about professors. Ask many students—don't enter a class "blind" and then find that you are not compatible with a professor's teaching and/or testing style. It can happen!

Class Work: Don't be afraid to level with a professor if you're having a problem with the work—you'll find that most of them are more than willing to meet you half way and give you the help you need.

Library: During the first few weeks, become thoroughly familiar with the library system: you'll depend very heavily upon this knowledge for 4 years. Don't be afraid to ask the staff for help, they are glad to assist you.

Get Involved: If you feel somehow "out of place" at Wagner, go to work in a student organization and/or publication. You'll be most welcome and, thus, will begin to feel more like a part of the Wagner community. This is especially helpful for commuting students.

New Wagnerian coming; new format and schedule

Beginning with the next issue, The Wagnerian will have a new format and will go to a biweekly publication schedule. Instead of the present tabloid format it will become a magazine format. It will still be printed on newsprint but will have more of a magazine style. This new format is glued in the center, much as magazines are stapled together, and will be approximately the same size as Time or Newsweek.

The change of format is due in part to its greater adaptability and suitability to more in-depth stories. The changes in the Wagner student body in recent years have drawn the paper away from very current stories, since other media are much more immediate (TV, radio, daily newspapers) in this, the media center of the world. We can offer the type of articles that are of lesser interest to daily or even weekly papers but are of greater interest to our students—the in-depth, magazine style stories.

Along with these changes we hope to see a renewed interest in the paper. Any student or faculty member who has done research or a paper he or she feels is of interest to the community as a whole is invited to submit it, or a letter outlining it, to the Wagnerian for consideration for publication.

The Wagnerian is located in room 227 of the Union, or can be reached through campus mail.

We hope you like the new format. Let us hear your suggestions.

Union stairs: Ready for another winter

One of the things that was accomplished during the summer—long-needed stair repairs to the steps leading up to the Union. Most of the tiled plaza was also torn up and the tiles were reset. Here workmen are still putting the finishing touches on the new concrete steps on the first day of classes.

Bellamy, Previti hurt in scrimmage against Kean

During the scrimmage with Kean, which is not a team Wagner plays in the regular season, two starting players were injured.

Tony Bellamy, who starts at fullback, broke a vertebrae in his back and was expected to be out the remainder of the season. He was out jogging yesterday, however, so it is possible that we'll see him in action again before the season is over.

Bernie Previti, a starting outside linebacker who was chosen an All Metropolitan last year, injured a knee. He was not expected to play against Gettysburg on Sept. 11 but we should see him on the line again soon.
