Student Body Banquet Held In Gym Tomorrow

The Student Body Banquet will be held in the gymnasium tomorrow night at 6:15. Featured in the annual event will be the induction of the Student Association officers.

Also scheduled is the induction of the senior class into the alumni association, presentation of athletic and scholastic awards, presentation of the senior class gift by the class president, and the reading of the senior class will.

Alice Klumpe will be the soloist for the evening. Recorded dinner music will be played during the meal.

Planning of the dinner was handled by the Traditions Committee which consists of Ame Morris, Roger Greentaner, Mavis Freudenberg, and John Succo. Greentaner will be master of ceremonies.

It was announced last week by the dean's office that all day school students wishing to attend the dinner will be excused from all evening school classes after and including the tenth period.

Dr. Delo Speaks Of Dreams For Future At Convocation

"Next year, we hope to see another vision become a reality with the installation of the Student Union." This is a statement made by Dr. David M. Delo, President of the college, at the senior convocation held in the gymnasium yesterday morning.

CITES VISIONS

Dr. Delo spoke of the many visions that have come true since this college was first moved to Staten Island in 1918. He mentioned that "even during the past year, such events as the first all-college vocational conference, the May-Day sing, the first Parent's Day and similar events are small dreams come true."

"We have dreamed first of a new mens' dormitory standing where trees now grow diagonally behind South Hall." Dr. Delo said in discussing the dreams and hopes for the near future. "We dream of a dining room which can take care of our entire resident student body at one sitting." Also mentioned as in the planning stage is a chapel with a lofty spire on West Campus, and a modern library across the oval from the gym.

SEES SCIENCE BUILDING

"We are dreaming of the elimination of our crowded chemistry laboratories; of the expansion of our other sciences in a new building completely equipped with all modern scientific devices for teaching and for some research by the faculty," Dr. Delo stated.

Also mentioned were hopes for visiting professorships, artists, more adequate salaries for the faculty and improvement of the curriculum.

CORRECTION

In last week's issue we omitted the name of Charles Needham from the story of the Sigma inductions.

New Topics Discussed At S.A. Meeting

Unlike the meeting of April 21, when a quorum could not be reached, the Student Association held a meeting last Wednesday, May 5, with approximately 300 in attendance.

Running far overtime, due to the voiced student interest in many topics that were brought up, the meeting proposed and voted upon several major subjects. One was the enforcement, regulation, change, or investigation of the traditional dance curfews. The school dances, though supposed to end at midnight according to college policy, have, in a few cases, run over that time. A committee was formulated to investigate this problem and report their findings to the next meeting. Clem Bosco is chairman of this committee. Anne Pierce, Secretary announced the final tabulation of the Chest Drive, which amounts to $1082.24, including $261 from the Carnival.

Forensic Society Debates At Oswego

The Wagner College Debating Society, which has participated in inter-collegiate debates and four tournaments this season, participated in the Oswego State Teachers College's annual Forensic tournament on April 30 and May 1.

Representing Wagner's affirmative side were Howard Peskoe, junior, and William Etgen, freshman. Wagner's negative side was represented by Doris Nagel and Dorrit Weill, both sophomores. The topic of the tournament was the national debate topic, "Resolved that the U.S. should adopt a policy of free trade."

Mr. Peskoe and Mr. Etgen opposed Rochester, Houghton, and Genesco, losing to those schools by 22, 8, and 3 respectively. Misses Nagel and Weill opposed Rochester, Oswego, and Houghton, losing to the first and last school by 2 and 4 points, and defeating Oswego by one point.

Sigma Delta Phi Holds 31st Convention Day

On Friday, May 7, many alumni returned to the Wagner campus. Sigma Delta Phi, Wagner's oldest fraternity, held its 31st Anniversary Convention. Following tradition, Sigma Day commenced with a chapel service conducted by Rev. Luther Freimuth, a Sigma brother.

Throughout the day, the alumni renewed their acquaintance with the Wagner Campus, following a coffee get-together in the Guild-Den Annex.

In the afternoon the seniors joined with the alumni to play a softball game against the active chapter.

In the evening a convention banquet was held at the Plaza Casino. This was followed by a joint meeting of the active and alumni chapters. The seniors were inducted into the alumni chapter.

Chairman of the committee was Fred Holmes.

Wagner Alumni Wed

Miss Leona Marie Yater became the bride of Edward Wilhelm Weinberg in Sacred Heart Church, West Brighton, Staten Island, on Saturday, May 1.

Mrs. Weinberg, an alumna of Curtis High School, attended Wagner, where she was a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority.

The bridegroom was graduated from Wagner, where he was a member of Sigma Delta Phi Fraternity.

Are We Hypocrites ?

There is little that can be said in addition to H.W.'s letter that the editors of this paper and other active people of Wagner have not felt for some time. The hypocrisy to which Wagnerians seem prone has long been prevalent. In cases where the student would directly benefit from a contribution as with the Student Union fund, he is content to let someone else worry about the bill that had to be paid.

One feels ill when he hears a sermon in Evening Chapel about Christian charity and love and then has to face students who refuse to give up a little luxury to help his fellow human being.

H.W. has pointed out very clearly that the majority of Wagnerians are in actuality hypocrites whose Christianity extends no further than lip service and meaningless ritual. The American system of economy preaches self development and free enterprise and as Americans we often forget that we are still Christians and should give serious thought to the betterment of our fellow beings.

It is about time that Wagnerians stopped thinking of their own well-being and comfort and gave thought to some of the other people of this earth. Some day in the not too distant future we will have to think about these problems. Why not now? History will measure our religion by the degree to which we put it into use.

It's Been Real!!!

This is the last issue of the year and on behalf of the WAGNERIAN staff I wish to thank all those students and faculty members without whose help we never would have been able to put out a weekly newspaper. There have been a few times when it really came out pretty weakly.

The last week and I sit here writing my farewell editorial. My last issue. The rest of the paper has been put to bed and as soon as I finish this I can do likewise.

We haven't satisfied everyone all of the time this year but we have got some reactions. A few chuckles and a few curses. At least we're sure that someone knows the Wag is here. We've tried to keep you reasonably well informed on campus doings. We also tried to do it entertainingly. The closest we came to making everybody happy was with the April Fool issue. Too bad we can't do that all the time. Enough I guess. Ta ta for now. Good luck on the finals and have a nice summer.

ANATOMY DEMONSTRATION TODAY

"Ordinarily I don't go along with student lesson planning, but every now and then they come up with something pretty good"

LETTERS

Dear Editor,

We are the three seniors who were on the nominating committee for Student Association officers. In the editorial that appeared in last week's WAGNERIAN, it was suggested that a person be allowed "to stand or fall on his own accomplishments". In regard to being on this committee. The intimation appears to be that our lack of work, activities, and service to the school doesn't warrant our selection to this responsible post. As individuals we invite those who blandly assert this claim to check the records. It is also interesting to note that this list was approved by the Student Council in spite of our supposed lack of eligibility. In regard to the class officer who proposed our names, it seems rather strange that he would make such an overt statement regarding his loyalties in this situation. But we trust that he can and will defend himself.

Finally let us look at the proposed candidates for the various Student Association offices. Here there are males and females as well as fraternity men and non-fraternity men. Perhaps the author of the editorial about which we speak will find it enlightening to ask the members of this nominating committee to what extent fraternity politics ran amuck as a result of our actions. This we invite you to do.

Dick Dupre
 Fred Frick
 Herb Plehler

It seems that you very adeptly read a few things into the editorial that were definitely not there. There was no statement made that said anything about the personal qualifications of any of the members of the present nominating committee. How any of you could say that I belittled your record as to service to the school is more than I can see.

What I was hitting at in the editorial was the blatant fraternity partisanship shown. In your letter you seem to doubt my veracity as to what was said by the class officer who picked you. The editorial was checked by two people who were present at the Student Council meeting. I particularly made sure that the quotation was correct.

What is most interesting of all about your letter is the ending. I would like to be shown where, exactly where, in the editorial was anything said about "fraternity politics running amuck" as a result of your actions. I was not discussing personalities in the editorial and if you gentlemen choose to take it personally I'm very sorry.

R. V. Shinn, Jr.
 Editor-in-Chief

Most of the students here at Wagner claim Christianity as their religion. The majority of Freshmen entering this college, according to the Allport-Vernon Scale, feel that religious values are the dominant ones in their lives.

A few weeks ago, we were asked to give to the Campus Community Chest. A donation from each student equivalent to the amount he would normally spend on cigarettes and coke in a week, or on a movie in the city, would have carried us over the goal. Yet students contributed just 12% of the proposed goal. This is to say: Who cares about you, fellow-student in India, who cannot continue your studies because of a lack of books and equipment; or you in Greece who, as a result of malnutrition and overwork, have contacted tuberculosis and need to rest from your studies? So what if negro students in America have sub-standard educational opportunities, or that orphaned children in Europe are inadequately housed and fed, or that juvenile delinquency is increasing in my own community? It is, I think, not what we say, but what we do, that reflects what we truly believe.

Play 'n' Review

ONCE IN A LIFETIME

Last Thursday, at 8:30 p.m., the curtain of the Wagner auditorium opened to display the thirteenth anniversary production of the Varsity Players. A Kaufman play, Once In A Lifetime was the fare that awaited the opening night audience.

Vincent Zangara, the director, seems to have taken a strong hold on the reins of the Wagner thespians. If this production is any indication, the dialogue, of course, with its swift repartee is able to sustain even those players who are not up to full strength in their roles. However, on the whole, the Varsity Players have come up with a success this time.

Once In A Lifetime is a play of the flapper era, dealing with the advent of "talkies." This is the hinge on which the action turns. A couple of promoters, May Daniels and Jerry Hyland (played by Anne Pierce and Sid Wolansky), decide to cash in on the new problem which faces the Hollywood moguls, teaching silent stars to speak. With the help of the local Louella Parsons, "Helen Hobart," they manage to embark upon their career and open a school of elocution. With them goes their simple-minded stooge (Bill Schneider). Dr. Lewis, as he is dubbed by the two conspirators, meets the love of his life on the train to Hollywood. She is Susan Walker (Pat Perry), a struggling young actress (?), who Dr. Lewis promises to help although he really doesn't know what it's all about.

The trials and tribulations of the Hollywood rat race set in, and after many adventures and misadventures, the two erstwhile "smart" conspirators find themselves outwitted by their seemingly innocuous little friend, Dr. Lewis, by a series of flukes, which could only happen in Hollywood, has ingratiated himself into the producer's heart, achieved success for his girl Susan, and has himself become a "Hollywood executive."

This may seem a simple enough plot, but coupled with the little satiric and ironic touches supplied by Kaufman, the play keeps the audience constantly on the alert for the next line or gesture. Overacting and/or underacting could certainly pass for the real thing under such circumstances.

Mr. Zangara seems to have developed a sixth sense in the casting of certain parts. Molly Gillam, for instance, in the role of the holy-toy Mrs. Walker, is a stroke of perfect casting. Ed Rutmayer, as the stereotypical of the bombastic foreign director is another excellent choice. However, the person who seems to come to life most effectively over the footlights is John Young. In the role of Lawrence Vail, a part which Kaufman took in the original play, Young is, at times, more like the sarcastic and opinionated playwright than Kaufman himself. The gestures and movements which he followed closely from Kaufman's appearances on television panel shows, enabled Young to bring the part to life expertly.

With regard to the principals, there is little that can be said, except that they were very good. Anne Pierce was consistent enough in characterization to make the person she represented believable. Sid Wolansky, a comparative amateur at the game of acting, managed to present the role of the promoter with a large degree of success. Bill Schneider played himself and was a hit.

As the secretary, Elaine Banfi gave a good character role, sustained and credible. However, Elaine Di Pasca, failed to play a completely consistent part in the role of the columnist. She was by turns effusive and restrained, where the role should have been played completely in the manner that one associates with the Hollywood columnist. Pat Perry, as the aspiring young actress, gives even further indication of her ability than she showed in Lilhom.

With regard to the sets, Anton Thunhart should be accorded a vote of congratulations. To achieve realism with limited resources is a difficult thing, but his ability to take a few boards and make them into a bed, a pullman seat, or a hotel staircase is quite remarkable. The sound stage in Act III deserves special mention for it was authentic and gave the flavor of Hollywood. It also enabled us to see backstage in our own theatre. It is hard to realize the intricacies of backstage unless you can see it in such an effective way.

A word must be said about the programs which, coming close to the real Broadway Playbill, made the audience feel as if it was somewhere on the Great White Way.

All in all, the Varsity Players seem to have taken their new director into their midst and have been able to work together with him to their mutual gratification. Perhaps part of their success is because of the nature of Once In A Lifetime which is light and pleasant. However, most of the credit must go to excellent casting and cooperation. We are pleased to look forward to the successful production of more plays in this same vein.

Markham Draft Given To College

The first draft of Edwin Markham's "The Man With The Hoe" was presented formally last Wednesday to Wagner by the Edwin Markham Memorial Association.

The presentation marked the culmination of the transfer to Wagner of thousands of items of Markhamiana from the association's collections.

The memorandum notebook of the poem was rescued from what was thought to be a pile of rubbish in the cellar of the Markham home when it was taken over by the association in 1940. The notebook and many letters were found quite by chance by Dr. Vernon Hampton, the president of the association among the contents of what apparently had been a box taken by a caretaker.

Newspaper Sponsors Voting Age Contest

Cash and scholarship awards totaling over $4000 will go to high school and college students who are winners of the New York World-Telegram and Sun's essay contest on the controversial question, "Should The Voting Age be Lowered to 18 Years?" The contest started May 3rd and ends May 28th.

The first four awards of $1000 each will be divided between high school and college entrants. Twenty-four additional awards of $25 savings bonds accompanied by certificates of merit will also be equally divided between high school and college winners.

Contestants must write either "for" or "against" the question and are limited to one essay of not more than 100 words. Each essay must be accompanied by an entry blank which will be published daily in the World-Telegram and Sun during the four weeks of the contest.

Bosco Homers In 9th Inning As Seahawks Edge N. Y.U., 5-4

Clem Bosco, who hit a game winning homer against St. John's University three weeks ago, did it again last Wednesday as he slammed one over the centerfield fence in the ninth inning with no men on at Ohio Field in the Bronx, to edge New York University 5-4 in a Metropolitan Collegiate Baseball Conference game.

The Violets had rallied for three runs in the eighth inning to knot the count at 4-4, and knocked starter Jeff Safford out of the box. Bosco then came in to pitch hitless ball the rest of the way, and lead off the ninth with his fatal blow. This is only the Seahawks' second conference win, the other one coming when Bosco hit a three run homer at Dexter Park to defeat St. John's 5-3. Jeff Safford was very effective for the first seven innings giving up only four hits. Of the three runs he gave up in the eighth inning two were unearned. He fanned the first four N.Y.U. batters that he faced, and did not allow them to get a ball out of the infield until the fifth inning. While he was in there he walked none and struck out nine.

LEWIS HOMERS

The Seahawks jumped off to a three run advantage in the first inning. After Fred Hornbuckle and Bob Scariato singled to put men on first and second George (The Claw) Lewis drove a hard liner over Hal Coley's head in centerfield for his fourth home run of the season. They made it 4-0 in the third on Scariato's walk, Lewis' second straight hit, a single, and Bob Piela's line single to center which scored Scariato.

After scoring a single run in the fifth the Violets picked up three in the eighth to tie it up. Safford whiffed Sy Lynch to open the frame, but Joe Duva reached first on a bunt past the pitcher's mound. Ray Epstein, pinchitting, then drove a ground rule double to left to put men on second and third with only one out. A Texas-League single by Frank Lanzano drove home the second run of the game for the home club. With men on first and third Safford muffed Ed Wiczekiewicz's topped grounder, allowing the second run of the inning to score.

At this point Bosco took over for the Suttermen. On the next play Piela made the second error of the inning and Lanzano scored N.Y.U.'s fourth run. Pete Cangialosi then bounced to second for the third out. In the ninth inning, after his solo homer, Bosco set the Violets down in order to register his fourth win of the year.

Track Team Suffers Fourth Straight Loss

The Wagner College Track team, under the direction of Head Coach John (Bunny) Barbes, suffered their worst defeat of the season last Wednesday afternoon as they were trounced by Hofstra College 109-22, at the latter's field in Hempstead, Long Island.

The only first place which the Seahawks were able to capture was in the mile relay. The members of the winning relay team were Ed Owens, Bill Gerdes, Bud Vincent and Jerry Wesolowski. Charlie Harreus was the top point getter for the Green and White with second places in the high jump, and the discus throw, and a third place finish in the shot put.

Gordon Seig was next in line with a second in the 120 yard low hurdles, and a third in the 220 yard high hurdles. Mike Fahey finished third in both the one and two mile runs. The other scorers for the Green Wave were Bill Gerdes, third in the 220 yard run, and Ray Alexis, second in the 880 yard run.

Extra-Curricular Activities Evaluated At Gettysburg

Gettysburg, Pa. (I.P.) Under the direction of Dean of Men Robert H. Fryling and the Student Senate, a student-faculty plan for the evaluation of the extra-curricular activities and their contribution to the Gettysburg College campus is now being undertaken. According to Dean Fryling the basic idea is to evaluate activities, and do research on the matter.

One of the first phases of the plan will be a study of the value of increased use of activity points. The following are some of the bases on which activity points may be awarded: officer or member; importance of activity to members; importance of activity to others; importance of activity to college; amount of time required.

Senate committees will study the constitutions of every organization in its category, and verify, reject or make recommendations where considered necessary; they will utilize the faculty handbook and the Senate's records for the list of activities and activity rating scale. April 15 was the deadline for all committee reports to the general committee.

According to the evaluation sheet, "The initiative of the Student Senate in attempting to organize the various student activities on the campus as to date and time for meetings and other functions has led to the discussion of further study on the necessity of the number and type of activities which exist in the Campus Community."
