Dr. Arnaud Marts Speaker
At Beekman Tower Hotel
Last Tuesday Evening

Dr. Arnaud C. Marts, president of Bucknell University, was the main speaker at the second annual Wagner College Dinner, held last Tuesday evening at Beekman Tower Hotel in Manhattan.

Dr. Marts, who is also president of Marts and Lundi, Inc., campaign managers for churches and schools, discussed "The Place of the Small College in American Education." Dr. Frederic Sutter, President Stoughton, and Paul Carney also spoke.

Alumni, friends of the school, and all those connected in some way with the institution gathered to enjoy the fellowship at this occasion.

Last year this event was inaugurated with great success, Dr. Luther Weigle of the Yale Divinity School being the main speaker.

Colored views of the Wagner campus and Movie Bugs were shown at the dinner.

The Reverend Joseph Flotten of Long Island, the Rev. John Baughman of Brooklyn, the Rev. Hermann Meyer of New Springville, Mr. Bruce Carney, and Mr. Henry Endress made up the committee in charge of the arrangements.

DEBATERS TO ENGAGE TWO SCHOOLS TONIGHT

The Wagner debate squad engages two separate opponents tonight at eight, according to an announcement by Richard Hutton, manager of debate.

The affirmative team will meet C.C.N.Y. at home, while the negative team will debate with Rutgers away.

The two teams have already opened their season, both engaging in non-decision meets with Newark U.

The question selected by the National Debating Fraternity, and upon which the Wagner teams are debating tonight is: Resolved: that the United States should cease to spend public money (including credit) to stimulate business.

STUDENT OFFICERS AND FACULTY VOICE VIEWS ON HONOR CODE

Dean Kleintop, Dr. Hefelbower
And Honor Committee
Discuss Problem

What is the future of the Honor Code? Will there be changes made? If so, what are they? These questions and many others are pertinent at this time. The last meeting of the Student Association ended in a near-riot because of a discussion on the respective merits and defects of the present system. This holds much promise for the activity at the next meeting, especially in view of the fact that George Bain has requested permission to obtain the floor for five minutes in order to speak on the Honor System.

Since the last meeting there has been talk among various circles for the advocacy of different policies in regard to the system. These suggestions run the gamut from a laissez-faire attitude to a complete abolition and the institution of the less trustful but more universally accepted proctoring system.

More Interest Evidenced

This year there has been more interest evidenced in the Honor Code than at any time since its institution four years ago. In the administration of justice, the Honor Court has admittedly created grounds for impeachment by violating the Constitution at least twice so far. Most likely these charges will not be pressed because of the good intentions behind the actions, but they point to the fact that some revisions should be made.

The members of the Honor Court, who are identical with the executive committee of the Student Association, were questioned as to their attitudes regarding the Honor Code. To a man they agreed that they disliked sitting in judgment on fellow students.

President Carney's Opinion

President Paul Carney says, "We ought to have an honor code. I hope it becomes a tradition.

"The new system of graded penalties is better than the previous one. If in practice a plan unearths a factor which is of sufficient importance to warrant a revision, that revision should be made.

"As for the Honor Court, I do not particularly enjoy the position into which I am placed, but I am convinced that it must be done by someone, and if that someone is me, I believe in doing it to the best of my ability.

"The human element which enters into the cases because of personal relationships tend to give a defendant the benefit of the doubt.

"At the present time the system is workable. It is working now, but we need the cooperation of everyone to reveal its utmost potentialities.

"The Honor System is far from perfect," according to Christian Holmstrup, vice-president, "but despite its imperfections it is the best thing for the college. It creates a better academic attitude toward studies.

"I wish I didn't have to sit on the Honor Court. It doesn't seem right to judge others. In doing it, I feel very humble. But someone has to judge.

"Sometimes I feel that the system is working and at other times I feel that it is not. But its future success depends on the honor of the individual."

Accettola Agrees

Albert Accettola, treasurer of the Student Association, agrees with Holmstrup. He says, "The system has been far from perfect, but our present position is better than any which we might be in without one.

"My position on the Court is most uncomfortable. The responsibility makes it very difficult, especially when you realize that a decision may change an individual's entire career. But personal contacts help in judging through a knowledge of the defendant's character and background.

"I will back any good suggestions for improvement which are offered, because there is always the possibility that there are some which have not been considered so far."

The only woman on the Executive Committee, Marion Jensen, the secretary, feels that "the honor system is necessary in order to be fair to the community as a whole." Sympathy is her principal emotion when sitting in judgment. She feels that the future of the Code rests on the "psychological setup" of the students.

The greatest note of despair comes from Financial Secretary Gerhard Dietrich who says, "I would feel better if there was more cooperation on the part of all the students. And the Honor Court is a disagreeable task. The future of the honor system depends on sensible discussion without quibbling at the meetings."

Dean Kleintop's Stand

When questioned as to his stand in regard to the Honor Code Dean Kleintop said, "It is the best thing we have had so far. Regardless of the system, I am for an Honor Code as long as the ideal is upheld. Since its institution there is less trouble and less cheating than under the old proctoring system.

Dramatics Class To Give "Turtle Dove" In Great Kills

Women's Club to See Play
On March 7; Passion Play
Scheduled for March 31

"Turtle Dove," by Margaret Scott Oliver, a one-act play written in the Chinese manner, will be presented by the Dramatics Class on the seventh of March for the Great Kills Women's Club.

This play concerns the love affair of Kwen-lin, played by Faith Frost, and Chang-Sut-Yen, played by Robert Wilson. They are hampered by the contrary plans of Kwen-lin's Mandarin father, to be portrayed by John McDermott. Erling Nilssen, as the Property Man, and Luther Freimuth, as the Chorus make up the rest of the cast.

A Passion play, "Thy Kingdom Come," written by Professor T. E. Palleske, will be produced for the first time on March 31. Professor Palleske is adapting three scenes of the play for production at Wagner.

Last Saturday afternoon, the Dramatics Club conducted a theatre party to see "Two Too Many," a play presented by the Morning Side Players at Earl Hall, Columbia University.

Most of the new freshmen are graduates of mid-year high school graduating classes. Shirley Sauvlet of Brooklyn, New York, is the only new dormitory student. All others are residents of Staten Island.

The other new students are Marcene Aleski, Austin Anderle, David Annunziato, Edwin Bischoff, Virginia Clark, Margaret Connolly, Roland Longe, Theodore Loos, Julius Luck, Conald Lynk, Bernice Mikkelsen, Doris Norton, Ada Sater, Irene Scar-amuzzo, Norton Taylor, Paul West, Ann White, and Margaret Wiesner.

An Effective Honor Code

In this issue of the WAGNERIAN, much space has been given over to the opinions of the executive committee of the Student Association who sit as the court of justice in cases where a breach of honor is involved, and two faculty members, concerning the very vital questions which have arisen in regard to the Honor Code in force at present. Certain pertinent queries were asked of these persons, all in a direct way connected with the Code. They were requested to state their views concerning its future and essential worth, the system of penalties, and the meting out of justice at the sessions of the Honor Court.

For a number of years, or ever since the Honor Code was drawn up and adopted by the Association, there has been squabbling and questioning about certain points in the system, for instance, the question of penalties and the section which requires that all breaches of honor be reported by the offender himself or the observer of the offense. The matter has come to a head at the recent Student Association meetings.

What is to be done to settle the problem? What practicable solutions can be advanced for a satisfactory settlement? There are many.

We suggest this one—that an investigating committee, composed of the Honor Committee and three representatives elected by each class, convene to conduct an open forum discussion and consider the matter carefully. The students, after pondering the problem diligently, should express their views to their representatives, who would then reveal the wishes of their respective classes. With such a conclave, the entire trouble can be thrashed out thoroughly, and each person in the student body will have had a say in the solution. The investigating committee would then report its findings to the student body for final passing.

Only by an exhaustive study of the trouble, and a consideration of the views of all the students can this problem be effectively combated. We believe this way accomplishes these things.

The Purpose of Lent

With the coming of Ash Wednesdays our thoughts again turn toward Lent. To many people it is only a season when they put their pleasures away for six weeks in a store house and try to assume a pious-looking face.

Lent should bring a spirit of sacrifice into the make-up of each individual. It is really a preparation period, a period of self-examination, of realization of one's shortcomings. Lent, with its culminating point in Easter, should prepare one to greet Easter Sunday with a spirit of joy, so that they once again really feel that Christ has risen from the dead and through Him we receive life.

For this reason, Chapel, Lampadia and individual Churches offer their services so that each one might come before His altar. Let every one of us, during this coming Lenten period, prepare himself for His coming and join in unison before His altar, on the hill, so that we will be prepared to greet Easter in our own individual churches with that spirit of joy.

LETTERS

Dear Editor:

During the last Student Association meeting it became obviously clear that our so-called Honor System is absolutely not what it should be.

It seems to me as if the Code, built upon the honor of the individual, is not, and cannot be, enforced because the borderline of cheating is not made clear enough.

For example, are interlinear translations in accordance with the Honor Code, or do they violate it? Is group-work in contradiction to the system, or is it allowed?

The faculty, as well as the students, do not seem to cooperate in the way that they should; the faculty, not trusting us enough and the students often taking delight in "pulling a fast one on the prof."

What can we do to solve the problem? I think that the code should be completely rewritten, specifying the instances that involve honor, relying more upon the honor of the student, and changing the system of punishments. All violations embracing schoolwork and work on exams should be subject to punishments of expulsion from one-half year up, while violations pertaining to stealing and the destroying of property should be punished according to severity, from money fines to expulsions ranging from two weeks up.

A New Mercury Production

The theatre's two outstanding young theatrical stars, Burgess Meredith and Orson Welles, will be seen together this spring in one of the most ambitious productions ever seen on the American stage, when the Theatre Guild presents the Mercury Theatre's "Five Kings" which will open in Boston on February 20 at the Colonial Theatre.

An acting version of Shakespeare's chronicle plays prepared by Orson Welles, "Five Kings" represents dramatizations of some of the most fascinating pages of English history. It includes Shakespeare's "Henry IV," parts 1 and 2, "Henry V," "Henry VI," parts 1, 2, and 3, and "Richard III." According to Mr. Welles, these eight plays, to be presented in two evenings of theatre-going, will be woven into a drama of English history integrated by the personalities of the five kings.

Before beginning work on the adaptation, which depicts the rise of Henry V and the influence and degeneration of the English Royal family through the War of the Roses, Welles did considerable research, going back to Holinshed's "Chronicles" and other sources that Shakespeare used.

"The method employed in producing "Five Kings" is the only proper one for 1939," states Welles. "In 'Five Kings' students will get a more vivid and continuous picture of 120 years of English history than is possible from seeing or reading the individual histories."

It will open in New York the week of April 10.

"The Importance of Being Earnest"

A visit to the revival of Oscar Wilde's famous epigrammatic comedy, "The Importance of Being Earnest," would certainly not be amiss for any one desiring a thoroughly enjoyable evening at the theatre.

First produced in 1895, it still attracts enthusiastic audiences because of its amusing incidents and sparkling dialogue. Clifton Webb, Estelle Winwood, and Hope Williams are in the leading roles, and they do a noble piece of work.

The trouble that Algernon Moncrieff and John Worthing get into in their pursuits for the women they love, the difficulties that their imaginary relatives cause them, and finally, the unexpected and delightful climax of the action, all help to provide a well-spent evening.

Discount Cards for "What A Life"

Because hundreds of students are unable to see "What A Life" each week-end due to sell-out performances, a special "Four O'Clock Scholar Matinee" is being held every Friday afternoon, Ezra Stone, star of the comedy hit, has announced.

Student discount cards for "What A Life," now in its twelfth month at the Mansfield Theatre, will be honored for the Friday matinee which will end at exactly six o'clock. They may be secured from the editor.

Margie Rieb Paces Wagner Sextet To Its Third Win

Upsala College Nosed Out In Thrilling Game At East Orange

Led by diminutive Margie Rieb, the Wagner women's basketball squad won its third game in four starts by downing the Upsala College sextet 23-22 at East Orange, N. J., on February 14.

Retaining an early lead, the Wagner co-eds managed to score just enough to pull through with the win.

Margie Rieb led the Wagner scoring with seven field goals and one foul for fifteen points.

QUINTANA TOPS HIS TEAMMATES IN SCORING

After garnering three wins out of its first six starts, the men's varsity basketball team has tailsprung into a five game losing streak.

A moving zone defense was introduced against Drew in a vain effort to snap the string of defeats. With three opponents having broken fifty points in games in which the man-to-man defense was used, coach Herb Sutter switched to the zone in an effort to present a better defense, but in the latter part of the game, Drew repeatedly broke through for scores.

Hec Quintana is the bright spot of the offense, having tallied 113 points in eleven games for a 10.2 scoring average per contest. Hec, who is enjoying his best season in intercollegiate circles, has consistently kept the Hilltoppers in the ball game with sensational long shots.

THE SPORTS RAMBLER by John McDermott

The congratulations of the sports department to Bob White, who was elected to the captaincy of the 1939 Wagner football team. Certainly no one deserved the honor more than Bob, for next season will mark his fourth for the Green and White (no relation), and each one found him better than the last. What with being the captain, don't be surprised if he blasts the opposing eleven off the field practically by himself. The best of luck to you and the boys, Bob, and all that we can say is that if your team is half as good as ours was—it will still be far from perfect.

At long last the meek (?) co-ed has found an opportunity to "cut" the largest male student down to her level; ping-pong has become the instrument by which this probably long-awaited "worm-turning" is being accomplished. Wagner has definitely become ping-pong conscious, even to the extent of becoming chapel and class unconscious. No longer do the bulky athletic heroes condescend to humor the little women, for now all that she need do is murmur coyly, "Would you like to ping a little pong with me?" and his ego is liable to a quick renovation. Herb Sutter, quick to sense history in the making, has revealed that a tournament is to be held, from which the "King and Queen of The Paddle" will be chosen. (Fraternities please note). This will probably be of nation-wide interest to other colleges, for it will perhaps be the first time that the administration of any institution has condoned the placing of its females on the receiving end of paddles. To what ends women will go for emancipation!

If within the next month you happen to be walking around the campus, and you should be the recipient of a terrific—ah—how shall we put it?—ah, yes—if you should be the recipient of a terrific "konk on the dome," by all means grin and bear it, for it will not be the Martians of Orsen Welles, but only the wild pitchers attached to Coach Herb Sutter's diamond denizens. He is calling for candidates for the 1939 team, and has scheduled practice to begin on the first Monday in March.

In all seriousness there is a little point that the writer of this column would like to make clear to all those who, because they have paid their student body fee, read it. We write whatever we do in an effort to present things which are vital to Wagner athletics in an interesting way. If criticism is passed about any individuals there is nothing personal meant by it, and it should not be interpreted in any other spirit than that in which it is written. If anyone feels that they are being maligned, the only sporting thing to do is to present their version of incidents to us. If we are wrong we will rectify our errors.

Wagner Five Bows In Final Period To Drew Cagers

Hilltoppers Drop Fifth Straight at Madison By 43-35 Score

By again faltering in the closing minutes, the Wagner varsity basketball team suffered its fifth straight defeat, February 15, bowing to the Drew University cagers at Madison, N. J., by a 43-35 score.

Neither five could retain a lead for any length of time until the final period when Drew pulled away from the fighting Green-and-White team to win by its eight point margin.

Hec Quintana was again the big gun of the Hilltoppers' attack, throwing in six field goals from all over the court and adding three more markers from the foul line.

Music Club Sponsors Trip to Opera "Otello"

More than thirty Wagner faculty members and students recently heard Giovanni Martinelli sing the title role of Otello, an opera by Giuseppe Verdi, when the Music club sponsored its annual visit to the Metropolitan Opera House. Last year the society inaugurated these opera excursions, which allow the college family to see some of the greatest musical dramas at reduced rates, by attending a performance of Richard Wagner's Die Meistersinger.

Arthur Hergenhan, chairman of the club, has announced that another trip to the Metropolitan is being planned to take place during the spring season. The great interest of the students in the opera has warranted another trip. An opera by Wagner is tentatively being considered as the next to be seen.

The Music club furthermore plans to sponsor a series of violin concerts in chapel which will feature such able student violinists as Phil Luther and Sidney Levowitz.

Lampadia Council has received fifteen dollars from the Missionary Society of Christ Lutheran Church, Floral Park, L. I., to purchase hymnals to be used at the Lampadia functions. The committee is endeavoring to choose a hymnal most suitable for its purposes.

The Devotion committee reports a series of Tuesday evening Lenten Devotions to begin February 28th. The talks will center about the places connected with the Passion history. Certain students and members of the faculty will conduct and speak at these services.

Beginning on Monday, February 27th, Dr. Hinman will conduct a series of six one-hour talks on the International Affairs in Relation to Religion. These meetings will take place in the home of Dr. Hinman. All students are invited to attend.

Men Fencers Again Lose; Co-eds Remain Undefeated

Hard hit by ineligibilities the men's fencing squad has scored but one victory and one tie in seven tries. The only victory was registered over the Newark College of Engineering swordsmen.

In their last contest the Wagner fencers were nosed out by the C.C.N.Y. Evening School, 9-8.

The co-ed fencers remained undefeated by scoring a close win over Long Island University in their last meet. The score was 5-4. The swordswomen have also scored wins over the Jersey City Fencing Club and the Rotunda Foillettes.

Captain Ruth Gorman, Ann Bosche, and Virginia Costich have all done fine work in keeping the team record unstained.

VIEWS ON PRESENT HONOR CODE VOICED

"I have had one occasion to sit in on a session of the Honor Court and I think it is thoroughly fair. The personal element does not enter in here any more than under the proctoring system. After all, professors are human, too.

"No, I wouldn't want to go back to the old system."

Dr. Hefelbower feels that the Honor Code is a good thing but is only as strong as the students make it. Several times he has been in on sessions of the Honor Court and was very impressed. He says, "I observed in almost all students a maturity in judicial attitude and procedure which I had not expected." In his praise he especially cited the work of Miriam Serrick, secretary in 1936-37; Charles Hellriegel, president in 1937-38; and Paul Carney, our present president.

"In general, an honor system tends to work better in larger institutions than in smaller ones," according to Dr. Hefelbower, who is qualified to speak on this subject, having made an investigation in the field. "But its future depends on the students themselves. It will work just as well as they make it work, no better."

EVERYTHING WENT —ALMOST!

Have you ever played "Spin-the-bottle?" Well, we did, when the Boys' and Girls' Dormitory Associations gathered together on Friday, February 10, in kiddie costumes to play all the games that they had enjoyed in grammar school days.

Many of the movie stars were put to shame as the boys displayed their individual technique in "Spin-the-bottle." Marchmont Kalny, smacked his way to fame as he went about sipping the honey from each flower, while "Mc" Neuberg did his utmost to reach the sunflowers.

P.S. It was quite an evening!

ORIGINAL STUDENT SHOW IS PRESENTED

"The Parade of Talent (?)" was produced last Friday evening under the general supervision of John Devlin before an audience of faculty members and students.

It consisted of a group of twelve skits, musical numbers, and burlesques, much like the annual Men's Dormitory show, but on a bigger scale. A number of students assembled acts of their own and performed in them.

The show originated when several day students, having heard of the great success of the Men's Dormitory Show, to which only students on the hill were invited, felt that the whole student body should combine to present a similar entertainment.

Aiding Devlin was a committee comprising Marjorie Rieb, Walter Morten, John Merikle, George Bain, Jack Foster, Virginia Beebe, and Anna Kane. John McDermott and Philip Luther had charge of the music.

Recordings provided music for dancing after the presentation until 12 o'clock. There was an admission fee of ten cents, the entire proceeds being turned over to the American Red Cross.
