Faculty Additions Help Ease Strain

New Appointments Increase Staff; Meet Demands Of Large Enrollment

This year finds many new faces at Wagner, not only among the greatly enlarged student body, but the increased faculty also. As the registration of students has grown, the president of the college has been busy finding competent instructors to cope with the record enrollment.

Teaching appointments have been made in almost every department.

Miss Lucile Sloan, the first full-time dean of women at Wagner, comes to us from Fairfax Hall in Virginia. Also a member of the history teaching staff, Miss Sloan holds a master's degree from Duke University.

Another addition to the history department is Mr. George Giese-mann, a World War II veteran, and a former member of the N.Y.U. faculty. Mr. Giese-mann holds a master's degree from N.Y.U.

Mr. Norval Calhoun, a veteran of World War II and formerly an instructor at the University of Pittsburgh, where he received his master's degree, is the head of the newly added education department at Wagner.

Miss Edith Guertler and Miss Edyth Kershaw, both Wagner alumna, are new additions to the science department. Miss Guertler is teaching chemistry, and Miss Kershaw, who received a master's degree from N.Y.U., has taken up her duties as an instructor in bacteriology.

Another Wagner alumna to return to her alma mater in a teaching capacity is Mrs. Doris Ray-maley of the English department. Mrs. Raymaley has done work toward a Master's degree at Columbia University.

In the Mathematics department we find Mr. T. Lyman Niles, a graduate of Yale, and a former teacher at Presbyterian Junior College in North Carolina.

Business administration, something new at Wagner, has Mr. Charles Kraemer and Mr. Harry Roggenburg as members of the staff of that department. Mr. Kraemer formerly taught at the New Jersey State Teacher's College in Patterson, and Mr. Roggenburg, a Navy veteran, was an instructor at the University of Texas while he was in the Navy.

Mr. Robert Olwig, a Wagner alumnus, is back at Wagner teaching Journalism. Mr. Olwig, night city editor of the Staten Island Advance, is a graduate of the Columbia University School of Journalism.

Several other instructors have been added to the faculty as well as these we have mentioned. Next week we shall present a few more to you.

Freshmen Elect Class Officers

The freshman class, on Friday October 3rd, elected temporary officers who will guide them during the next two weeks.

According to Paul Hoffman, newly elected president, the staff will make arrangements for freshman stunt night, attempt to organize the freshman class and arrange for the new students to become better acquainted with fellow Wagnerians. Hoffman, who is preparing for the ministry, comes from Lancaster, New York.

Other freshmen elected were Frank Kaiser, vice-pres.; Lillian Lee, sec'y. and Beulah Raide, treas. Kaiser, a journalism major, is a veteran and a Staten Islander. Miss Lee, a nursing student, was born in Honolulu, and came to New York in 1943. Lillian expressed her intentions decisively: "We intend to give the sophomore class a terrific run for its money during hazing week and I'm sure we'll capture the flag."

Miss Raiden is also a Staten Islander living at 215 Hart Blvd. She is preparing for a career in physical education, and is already a member of the cheerleading squad.

Kaiser, who served in the Armored and Air Forces and participated in five major engagements in the ETO, is now organizing the male freshmen for the coming flag rush. The first communique issued from the new vice-president indicates that the freshmen have devised several secret weapons for use during "Operation Suicide."

All of the new officers emphasized that they intend to make this, the largest class in Wagner, the "best class."

Hoffman sounded the keynote when he said, "Our Class, being the first to return under the semester system, has a great opportunity to reestablish Wagner traditions and to start some new ones. We intend to take full advantage of these opportunities and are expecting the cooperation of all freshmen."

Huge Rally Tonight; "Beat Lowell" is Cry

Huge Bonfire and Sweater Dance To Kindle Spirits For Grid Game

Tonight at eight, Wagnerites will officially welcome the return of King Football to the Hilltop gridiron. And a gala occasion it will be! Festivities will begin at ten minutes to eight, with an impressive torchlight parade. Everyone will participate in this inspiring spectacle; which will wind its way around the campus to the one point where the picturesque panorama of all New York may be viewed. Namely, our Bonfire site outside of Cunard Hall.

Andreas Schanke, Student Worker, To Speak Friday

Mr. Schanke to Discuss Student Life in Norway

For our chapel service next Friday, October 18, Pastor Kirsch has arranged to present Mr. Andreas Schanke, a student worker for the World Student Christian Federation. Mr. Schanke will discuss student life in Norway and the work of the W. S. C. F. in Europe.

During the recent war, Mr. Schanke was an active participant in the Norwegian resistance movement. And now under the auspices of the W. S. C. F., he is making a two months tour of the United States. Mr. Schanke's tour will consist of lectures, to be given at various colleges and universities.

Pastor Kirsch, our college chaplain, also wishes to remind the students that regular chapel services will be held in the auditorium each Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning at 9:50 o'clock. Members of the Lampadia Council, student religious group, will conduct evening devotions on Tuesdays and Thursdays. From time to time, guest speakers will be presented in conjunction with the regularly scheduled services.

Estelle Sussman Interpreter For UNRRA Nurses

Senior Cadet Nurse Acts as Unofficial Good Will Agent

Among the talented Wagner students here at Seaview is one, Estelle "Frenchie" Sussman, who has been acting as unofficial interpreter for visiting UNRRA nurses. Estelle is a member of the first nursing class and is spending her senior cadet period in the Seaview operating room.

UNRRA nurses, who have come here from many war-torn European countries to study American methods of treating tuberculosis and to learn new methods developed during the war, have found Estelle ready and willing to help them at all times. She has worked long hours translating nursing procedures and doctors' instructions for these visitors, and has not even been slowed down by difficult medical terminology. Of more importance than this, perhaps, is the endless assistance she has given in helping to make these nurses feel at home in a foreign country.

We have appreciated this service so willingly rendered and foresee a great career ahead for "Frenchie" in the capacity of ambassador of good will from Wagner College, as she is planning to continue her work at the American Hospital in France later on.

G.I.-BILL CHECKS EXPECTED TO BE DELAYED

The Veterans Administration has notified authorities that veteran students should not expect their October subsistence check before the end of November or the first of December. This delay is due to the overwhelming rush of work that the Regional Office is subjected to at the beginning of a new school year.

All veterans attending Wagner will be paid from the second of October, so if you have been receiving unemployment compensation for September be sure that you do not accept a twenty dollar check for the week beginning October first. All unemployment claims are cross-checked with the V.A. and offenders must answer to one or the other of the agencies.

Mrs. Van Derven is the attractive young red-head in the Publications Office who listens to all the tales of woe concerning ex-G.I.'s, and does her best to fight through the reams of red-tape to set your mind at ease. Mrs. Van Derven notifies us that each month veterans must fill out VA Form 7-1961 which is an estimate of your monthly earnings over and above the subsistence allowed you by the Veterans Administration. No single student is permitted to earn more than $175 per month including subsistence, and no married student veteran is permitted to receive more than $200 per month including subsistence while attending school. Be sure that you fill this form out, otherwise you may jeopardize the arrival of your subsistence check. This check is usually late as it is. Don't delay it any more.

Remember that your cost of tuition is covered here at school only if you have presented your Certificate of Eligibility to the Registrar or her Assistant. The Certificate of Eligibility is obtainable from the Veterans Administration Regional Office at Seventh Avenue and Twenty-fourth Street, New York City. If you have any questions that cannot be answered by Mrs. Van Derven or a member of the Veterans' Council contact the V. A. Office at 25 Hyatt Street, St. George, S. I. By doing so you may save yourself a trip to New York City.

Mark Carney, who belongs to the "keep smiling" element at Wagner, has announced that tonight our own Scotty Morrison, of the genial grin and glib line, will be M.C. He will be M.C'ing one of the largest gatherings at any Pep-rally in the history of the school. The D.A., or Director of Athletics, Herb Sutter, and Ray Kirchmeyer, have both laboriously prepared a few thousand well chosen words for the occasion. To lend "atmosphere" to the collegiate spirit of our group, Fritz Vollenweiller, the rotund li'l man with the heart as big as his waistline, will lead in the singing of traditional Hilltop favorites. The cheerleading squad, which did such an excellent job at last week's frosh rally, has promised to be on hand once again. Cookie Sutcliffe, Vicky Talenti, June Reisch, Flo Kallidin, and Diana Marsh are the shapely coeds who will attempt to throw their sacroiliacs out of joint this year.

We understand our friend, and chairman of the rally committee, Mark Carney, has fineigled a deal with the freshman class officers whereby there will be wood furnished to build a bonfire big enough to be seen from Brooklyn. But don't worry! With George Tamke around to make with the fire extinguisher, everything will be kept under control. The 1950 class representatives went even further and promised to have spirited signs on hand for Saturday's game.

Invitations have been extended to all former Wagner players, and it is hoped that one or two of them may speak at the gathering.

Following the rally, students are invited to attend a sweater dance in the auditorium. This, too, is a traditional event before each opening game. Admission to the dance is free, but the wearing of a sweater (preferably green) is mandatory. Some time during the evening a sweater girl will be selected.

At the present time it is not known whether a dance band will play. This is due to the fact that bands are usually booked far in advance, and the time element involved here was very short. The committee has arranged to have a juke box on hand and will try to procure a band if possible.

The site outside Cunard is large

Editorial

The registration last week was an indication of the difficulties which have arisen as a result of enlarging the student body. We do not belittle the hard work put in by the faculty and staff on the registration days. However, it is not possible to use the same mechanics of registration for 1000 students as it is for 300. The system used previously for a few hundred students enabled the faculty to give individual guidance in the selection of programs of study. When the hordes descended on the Ad Building last Saturday it became increasingly evident that the system could not meet this requirement. The afternoon progressed and the profs and students began to wilt under the strain. It was obvious that it was longer a question of meeting curriculum requirements in a normal, compact program, but rather giving students enough hours to occupy their time, or else spreading their needed courses out from eight in the morning to ten in the evening.

Let us, however, be more precise in our criticism by explaining the situation. To the average upper classman, versed in the intricacies of program planning, it was difficult this year to select a program from the courses offered even after a long interview with his major prof. True, because class rosters were overcrowded. To the freshman just out of high school or the service, it was almost impossible to handle the job. Why? Because every student must take first year Religion, Philosophy and English. Philosophy 1, for example, had only one section offered. This meant that only twenty-five people out of several hundred could take this course in their freshman year. What happens to the remainder? They must fill in their programs with from three to nine hours of advanced courses or take the alternative of leaving these hours blank. We cite the case of a freshman business administration major who was bewildered when he found that only one course in his chosen field was available, if he could reach the desk before that class closed.

Our aim is not merely to criticize, but to be constructive. In regard to the mechanics of registration, we feel that decentralization is needed. The Auditorium was built to handle 250 individuals at best; certainly not 450 milling students, plus faculty, plus office workers. Why not have the various departments in separate classrooms. And, why not let the Chem department handle the makeup of all Chem classes and only Chem. classes. The same should hold true for English, Religion, etc. Chem majors could register for Chem courses first, then proceed to the other departments for their additional courses. This would eliminate the possibility of a student not being able to take his major requirements.

With regard to the problem of small classes and the inevitable result that many people will be left high and dry with little hope of taking their required courses in the near future, we offer these suggestions. The Auditorium may be used as a large lecture hall. Upper classmen could aid the overburdened professor in the tasks of taking attendance, and marking tests and assignments. Large colleges have proven that this is an efficient way to deal with the sheer weight of numbers.

The fact is that the Wagner family has grown into a community. Consequently, the family spirit will have to be partially sacrificed if the administration expects to fulfill its obligations to the greatly enlarged student body.

JUST ASKING

—by Felicia Caulfield—

What is your opinion of the "new" Wagner?

Pete Orleman, Class of '49

Those pastel classrooms do something to me! But seriously, it is time they fixed things up around here. I remember listening to a description of the seige of Moscow in the now terra-cotta and white history room, and having the ceiling fall on me piece by piece . . . Certainly I approve of the increased enrollment except for the fact that there are not enough representatives of the opposite sex . . . Enough of this foolishness, do you realize that young lady over there has the most unusual cephalic index!

Kay Walker, Class of '48

I love it! So many people and they are all so friendly. No, I don't mean the men particularly. But don't print that, they might not understand.

Larry "Pop" Clody, Class of '49

There are too many students, but I say the more the better. I'm just glad to be back . . . There seems to be more spirit and activity than when I was first here in '40 . . . Those newly painted classrooms have a startling effect. The colors are enough to keep you awake even on Monday morninigs.

Bob Swift, Class of '50

Need more buildings!
(Talkative soul! . . . ed.)

Lamar Smith, Class of '47

I really don't know the Wagner of 1000 students. No, far from being reactionary I hope to see a Wagner University some time in the future, but the school has taken too much upon itself now with its limited facilities . . . As for myself I preferred the unit system we adopted during the war, but "you gotta keep movin' son."

Coline Innes, Class of '48

Too many men!

With so many new students we upperclassmen are outnumbered, we feel like the "freshmen", but just give up a few weeks, or better yet, just give us Freshmen Week.

George Tampke, Class of '48

You may quote me as saying, "harumph!". "Although things are in an uproar now, they will be running smoothly in time. Not wanting to pass judgment I'll just say that I'm glad to have been a part of the old Wagner, and I'm curious to see and be part of the new."

Art Krida, Class of '47

The school seems out of proportion with so many students and such limited space. I feel sure though, that with our able administration under the leadership of Dr. Langsom, it will soon catch up with itself . . . It doesn't seem to me that even with the greatly increased enrollment, Wagner will lose any of the "family on the hill" spirit which has distinguished it from all others.

Julius "Whitey" Horai
Athletic Equipment Manager

I ain't sayin nothin' . . . They're too many phony's comin' in. Yah don't know nobody no more.

THE HILLTOPPER

Looking Back

Well—now that each and every student is tucked away in some part of our bulging campus, it's possible to sit down and jot down a few memories of Orientation Week.

Man of the Month

The first and foremost item which comes to mind is the magnificent job which Vincent Chiola, Chairman of the Board of Traditions, accomplished in planning the entire program almost single-handedly. Working alone through the "vacation" month of September, he had to make arrangements to see that hundreds of new students received adequate instruction in the history and traditions of Wagner College. While other students were enjoying the pleasures of the mountains and seashore, Jim, as he is known, was bustling around the campus attending to a hundred and one details. As the number of accepted students increased, his job became more and more difficult. The morning it was announced that the opening of school had been postponed he had a few bad moments. Most of his work went for nothing and he started all over again. A lesser man would have thrown in the towel, but Jim just buckled down to the new situation and came up with a workable program. It was an extremely difficult job to condense a week's activities into a few days, accommodate a large number of students, and yet not lose the personal touch so necessary. The fine response to the three days' activity is a fitting testimonial for this true son of Wagner.

Those Who Helped

Not to be forgotten either are the hard-working counsellors who were hard-pressed at all times to keep in contact with all the members of their groups. That they could account for almost every one of their charges somewhere among our hallowed halls during the day was a credit to their diligence. To name them all and cite their individual contributions would require all the space in this paper. Several deserve special mention, however. Stan Stilwell gave one of the best talks heard around here in a long time. Bob Armstrong and Bam Reisch also did well when it was their turn to mount the rostrum. Fred Vohlweiller and Bill Volpe hepped up the bonfire. Bob Meyer received the dorm students and made them feel at home. Edith Knecht, acting once again as student hostess, whipped up the afternoon tea and saw that it proceeded in a regal manner. Upperclassmen, all, they set an example that new Wagnerites will have a hard time living up to.

Frosh Elections

The freshman class elections were suite a surprise. There was none of the apathy that is usually apparent when people are still strange to one another. The spirit of the Class of 1950, if carried on, will make for a lot of sophomore headaches, and in the long run, a great interest in student activities.

A Brief Notice

To all those who have inquired about joining the staff of the Wagnerian I wish to say that our plans for the year have not yet been formalized. We will hold our first regular staff meeting of the semester this afternoon and will discuss this matter. Such a flood of applications was not expected, so please be patient and we will do our best to give everyone a chance.

WAGNER OPENS SEASON; FACES LOWELL TEXTILE

SPORTS CORNER

by Lefty Gearhart

First Hand Info

This reporter came back from the pre-season practice session with the football team in Pennsylvania convinced that this type of training is a great forward step in keeping with the growth of the college. The mountain air certainly seemed to agree with the Hilltopper grid squad. Aside from a few wet days the men enjoyed their period of training. The excellent spirit of the players, especially those who were new to the school on the hill, was very encouraging. Each member of the large squad was given a chance to show what he could do. Ray Kirchmeyer, in cutting, tried his utmost to be fair. I myself, having been on the scene, believe that he did an outstanding job.

The Future????

This being the first time the football team went away, the trip was looked on as an experiment. The immediate results are impressive. The squad came back in fine physical condition. In future years, if the athletic department should decide to make an annual trip to a training camp, things will be a lot better organized and I think the trips will always be successful. A training system like this should turn out bigger and better Green Waves.

Between the Goal Posts

Coach "Bunny" Barbes is quite an expert at first-aid, especially when assisted by team trainer "Doc" Horai. . . . Quite a few boys have come out for the squad since its return from the Poconos. We might hear a lot from them before the end of the season. The casualty list so far has been very small, with the only serious loss being Ed Mulholland. Ed's banged up leg will keep him idle for a while. . . . The Lutherland staff, in a generous gesture, cut down their Cro-Golf course to make a playing field for our team. . . . Bill Krawell deserves a word of praise for his work as manager, and Nick Baldasano for his assistance to the line coach, the aforementioned Mr. Barbes. . . . The training period will probably start sooner next year in order to miss the seasonal mountain rains.

Through The Hoop

With the first Wagner football game to be played, basketball is already beginning to roll. Practice has already been called. . . . Jim Sackel, a "W" man from last season, will not return to the court this year. He recently enlisted in the Army. Jimmy will also be missed on the diamond. . . . Bobby Messina's eagle-eye will be sorely missed. He was high-scorer of last year's crack cage outfit. Bob received his degree in June and expects to go to Brooklyn College to do graduate work.

Miss Toebke Appointed New Athletic Director

The appointment of Miss Helen Toebke as director of women's athletics was announced recently by Dr. Langsam.

After graduating from John Adams High School in Brooklyn, N. Y., Miss Toebke entered Hunter College where she worked for her bachelor's degree in Physical Education. The new director taught at New York University and was also a member of the faculties of Long Island City High School and the Horace Mann School. Aside from her teaching duties, Miss Toebke is a member of the New York Field Hockey Team.

With this wealth of experience, we are confident that Miss Toebke will be able to organize and train successful girls hockey and basketball teams.

Our Opponents Have Been Busy

Wagner's opponents have been busy playing games for the past few weeks while the Green Wave has been in training. Because of this our team is likely to have a tough time this year, having started late. Some of their opponents have two or three games behind them already. Such in the case of Lowell Textile, tomorrow's adversary. The two games they played should have ironed out a lot of their mistakes and they will probably be well-drilled by now. Brooklyn College opened up last week against New York University, in a night game, and lost to the Violets in a hard-fought tilt. The final score was 19-8.

Susquehanna University and City College, both on the Wagner schedule, clashed in the Quaker state, with Dietz and Peters leading the Pennsylvania to a 13 to 7 victory. Susquehanna lost the following week to Haverford 20-6.

Kings Point, the most feared of our opponents, has lost three in a row. Villanova, Yale, and George Washington beat the Mariners by resounding scores. The Kings Point boys have been playing out of their class, however, and will be hungry for a victory by the time we meet them.

Our files show that Hartwick has won one game so far by a 20-0 count. Arnold also has a 6-0 victory to its credit.

Outlook Is Bright; After 4-yr. Layoff Hilltop Gridders Return to Gridiron

The Wagner College grid squad will open its 1946 season tomorrow against Lowell Textile College from Massachusetts. The inexperienced Hilltoppers will come up against a twice-tried team; Lowell having topped Norwich College in the opening game of their season 7-6, and then being trounced by a powerful St. Lawrence eleven 39-0.

Basketball Cagers, Under Herb Sutter, Off to Early Start

Night Students Hold First Practice Session; Many Lettermen To Return

Herb Sutter, basketball coach, got his cagers off to an early start this year. Night school students held the first basketball practice session this past Tuesday.

The cage-mentor expects to have a large field of candidates from which to pick his court aggregation. Work-outs will be held in the gymnasium in the early afternoon.

Next Wednesday the day school students will start practicing. The first few weeks will be spent in the conditioning of the cagers. Further information concerning the 46-47 team will be posted on the bulletin board.

The Hilltoppers open their season on December 3rd, when they face Manhattan College at the latter's court.

Seventh Game Is Added To List

Arnold Eleven Will Face Hilltoppers On Campus

The Arnold College eleven of New Haven, Connecticut, has been added to Wagner's 1946 grid schedule. Herb Sutter has announced that the game is to be played at our home field on Thanksgiving Day, November 23rd.

The addition of Arnold to the schedule brings the number of games to be played this year to seven.

The Textilers are also returning to the gridiron after a four-year lapse, and have regained three letter-men from their 1941 team. That same year Wagner eked out a 7-6 win, averaging a loss of 51-0 in '33.

Both teams have approximately the same average weight, with the Green Wave lacking in height. The New Englander's average back-field weight is 178 lbs., with the line ten pounds heavier.

The Lowell coach will probably start in his backfield: Nick Bernadino, 5' 11", 190 pound full-back. At the half-back spots will be Carl Abbattino, 160 pounds and John Kelly, 190. The quarter-back position will be held down by 170 pound Ray Brickley. The entire backfield, with the exception of Kelley, hails from Everett, Mass. The end positions are anchored by John Halpin and Jack McKniff, letter men. The remainder of the line is as follows; Jim O'Conner, center; Gerald Parent and Stuart Penner, guards; Harry Dickey and Evangelos Starrakoes, tackles.

The Wagner line-up is still undecided, with Coach Kirchmeyer unable to make a decision until game time because of the team's brief training period. Matt Scaffa, Albin Goetze, Ted Doerzbacher, Duck Howarth, Lou Gianvito, Neil Macintyre, Bob Quinn, Larry Clody, and Chris Kartalis will probably see action in the backfield before the end of the day. At the ends will be "Bev" Schaffer and Tom Russo, but Certo, Flamm, O'Donnel, Thompson, and Meibauer are fighting hard for these spots and may be last minute choices. At center will be either Scholz, Vondran, or Quakenbush. At the guard positions will likely be Chiapperino and Oetjen.

Saks Definite Starter

At left tackle will be amiable Jimmy Saks, 6' 2", 235 lb. veteran griddier. Right tackle is a toss-up between the Orlemann brothers, Cliff and Pete, Bransfield and Sullivan.

Ray Kirchmeyer, not having had a chance to see his team in action, cannot commit himself as to the outcome of the game, but knows the Hilltoppers will be in there fighting all the way.

The team's spirit is at a high pitch and a great game is in the offing. The entire student body of the college and a gala crowd of alumni and friends are expected to be in the stands at the Grymes Hill field.

OVER THE HILL

By BILL VOLPE

Barracksopia . . .

Word has gone out that the new housing development (barracks to you Kilroy) will be on the style of Hollywood apartments. You know, those apartments where . . . if you are in the living room and want to go into the kitchen or bathroom, you merely stand where you are.

For the homesick G.I. who may miss army life, a bugler and sergeant will be standard equipment in every barracks.

They're even installing ceilings made of rubber, so that when some joker blows his top all he'll do is bounce around.

The heating system should be in perfect condition all winter long. —But in case it fails—will someone please volunteer to spend the winter on the hill reading chapters of "Forever Amber."

I heard from very reliable sources . . . that all the men's barracks will have hot and cold running chambermaids —Or was that showers?

Last Week . . . I ran into Adele T. She informed me that the other half had succeeded in renting one of the three-room apartments for married couples. In fact they've furnished one of the rooms by collecting soap coupons. In five or ten years they expect to use up the soap they have stored in the other two rooms and live in all three. Just the five of them. Yes sir, real clean cut people.

Overheard Conversation . . . between Miss Hess and a new student. Student: Miss Hess, can you give me a room and bath in Barracksopia? Miss Hess: I can give you a room, Mr. Johnson, but you will have to take your own bath. (See Mrs. T. for soap).

Beveraging . . . I hear the residents of a certain dormitory are pretty hard drinkers. In fact, they had their water cut off one Monday and did not discover it until the following Saturday. There is one Organic student who absolutely refuses to drink water. Claims it corrodes his stomach. One erstwhile teetotaler drank so much that when the mosquitoes bit him they died of alcoholic poisoning. Hero of the Week . . . Today we salute Bam Reisch. Bam fell down the stairs last week with a pint of milk and spilled nary a drop. All he did was keep his mouth closed. Who gets the blame department . . . Which sophomore became intoxicated recently and spent a whole night throwing pennies in the sewer and then kept looking up at the clock on City Hall to see how much he weighed.

Thought For The Week . . . Life is just one fool thing after another;—love is just two fool things after each other.

Add Freshmen Personalities . . . It's easy to pick out the coed freshmen on the campus . . . They're all wearing pants, dungarees, jeans and G. I. trousers.

Chester Selitto is the contortionist of the football team.—He's always running around his own end.

College Receives Doctor's Bequest

A $25,000 bequest to Wagner for the establishment of scholarships for needy and deserving students, or for the financial assistance to deserving students, has been left by the late Dr. George H. Semken, Manhattan surgeon and cancer specialist, terms of his will, filed for probate in Manhattan, disclosed.

The residue of his estate was left to the New York Academy of Medicine to provide financial assistance to physicians. No part is to be used for lectures, library of administration purposes. If the academy should fail to accept the bequest under these conditions, the residue will pass to Wagner for purposes similar to those indicated in the $25,000 legacy.

Freshmen veterans we invite you to participate in all school activities. There are a great many veterans in all classes. We have all, at one time or another, gone through some type of hazing. Join in the fun . . . "students first, veterans second" . . . let that be our motto.

New Wagner Sign Erected By Alpha

The New York Beta Chapter of Alpha Sigma Phi this summer had the privilege of erecting the new Wagner Memorial Lutheran College sign, which now stands at the foot of the campus at Howard Avenue.

The committee in charge of the sign has announced that it will be officially presented to the college during a chapel program next week.

Alpha will hold its first meeting of the 46-47 year this coming Thursday at 7:30 PM in the men's dormitory.
