THE COACHES

TOMMY NEWTON

The only Arkansas native in the Interscholastic League coaching ranks, Tommy Newton, in his second season at Peabody Demonstration School, also is one of the loop's youngest mentors. Born Dec. 5, 1923, at Hot Springs, he attended grammar and high school at that resort town, the city of the famous baths and springs.

He remembers his high school football career particularly, for he played under Milan Creighton, who had coached the Chicago Cardinals for several seasons before his wife's health had forced them to move to Hot Springs.

There, while his wife was getting health treatments, Creighton handled the Hot Springs High School football team, a member of the Arkansas "Big Six," which probably plays as classy prep football as anywhere in the country. Tommy lettered in football, basketball and track at Hot Springs and played American Legion baseball.

He also fondly recalls his grid years because he played on the same team with Alton Baldwin, who was a second team All-American end at the University of Arkansas in Coach John Barnhill's first season of 1946.

And among Newton's opponents was Clyde Scott, the sizzling speedster who's now in pro ball. He was then playing for Smackover.

After his high school days at Hot Springs,

Tommy entered the service, then when he was discharged enrolled at Henderson State Teachers College in 1946, playing a varsity guard spot in 1946 and 1947 for the HSTC team. After graduation from Henderson, he came to Peabody College for his Masters, which he obtained in the summer of 1949.

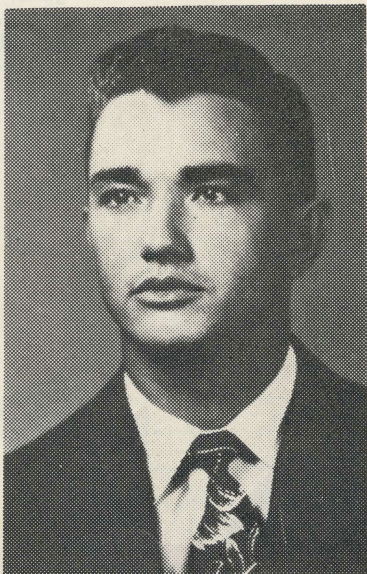

Assuming the head coaching reins in the fall of 1949 at the Demonstration School, Newton found the going rough.

Things haven't improved this season, either, and most of the time he's had 15 or less boys on the grid squad, including four freshmen.

Even at that, he thinks the outfit will do better than last year when it lost nine games in a row. "The spirit's better," he says, "and this year it looks like I've got some boys that want to play ball."

He had Clyde Ehrhardt helping him coach during much of the pre-season practice but the former Georgia Rose Bowl center of 1942 leaves Sept. 30th.

The handsome, black-haired Newton married the former Bunny Elliott of Benton, Ark., whom he met in school, in October of 1946 and they live at 2113 W Linden Ave. near 21st Ave. He lists his hobbies as hunting and fishing.

JIM CRAWFORD

A teammate of Bob Cummings on the 1942 Vanderbilt Commodore eleven, Jim Crawford is making his first coaching effort at the reins of the Duncan School Longhorns.

Crawford succeeded Lee Nalley, who was hired as head mentor at Gallatin High last winter. He was born Feb. 1, 1922 at Greenbrier in Robertson County, but moved to Evansville, Ind. at the age of five.

His father was employed by the L&N Railroad on the run between Evansville and Nashville, so Jim moved around quite a bit before entering high school.

He spent his high school days at Evansville Central, playing four years of football, the final three as a guard, besides four seasons of basketball and two of baseball.

When he graduated in 1941, he was sought by Butler, Louisville, Tennessee, Mississippi State and a number of Indiana colleges, jumped at Vanderbilt's offer because his mother had grown up near the campus, he'd anticipated going there for a long time.

After a good freshman season, he was guard on the 1941 and 1942 Commodore elevens. In July, 1943 he enlisted in the Navy's V-7 program and was sent to Georgia Tech.

By October he was sent to Norfolk and then to Midshipman School at Columbia University in New York City.

In April, 1944 he was commissioned an ensign and during the rest of World War II served on a destroyer in the Pacific.

He was in several campaigns, including the Second Battle of the Philippine Seas.

In June, 1946 he was released to the inactive Naval Reserve and still holds that status, hence is liable to call.

Returning to Vanderbilt, he played on the 1946 Commodore outfit, Red Sanders' first postwar team and graduated in March, 1947 with a degree in Mechanical Engineering.

He was employed at Allen Mfg. Co. along with other Commodores Binks Bushmaeier, George Marlin, Tommy Owen and Eddie Atkinson and worked there two and a half years.

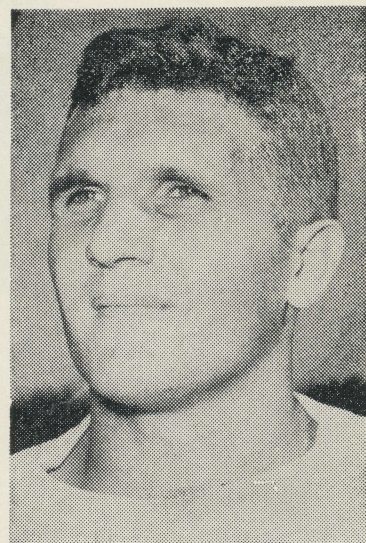

On Sept. 17, 1949 he married the former Barbara Woodard of Nashville, who was Lady of the Bracelet at Vanderbilt in 1949.

She's teaching at Glenn Grammar School along with Mrs. Bill Powell and several other Vanderbilt graduates. Jim, who's been working on his Masters in School Administration at Peabody the past summer, is using the single wing at Duncan as he learned it under Red Sanders, making a few modifications of his own.

The Crawfords reside on Kenwood Drive in Inglewood with his parents, not far from the Cummings' home on Maplewood Lane.

Jim lists his favorite pastimes as fishing, hunting and swimming, and naturally football is his favorite sport.

He follows such ex-Commodores as Nalley, Buford Higgs, Dave Hambrick, Buster Earls and others at the helm of Duncan School's Longhorns.
